ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

CAPITAL LANDSCAPING LLC

Employer

OC: 10/27/19

Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The claimant/appellant, Kenneth A. Dalton, filed an appeal from the November 14, 2019 (reference 01) lowa Workforce Development ("IWD") unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on December 6, 2019. The claimant participated personally. The employer, Capital Landscaping LLC., participated through Phillip Glaser, owner. Katharina Glaser also attended.

The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative records including the fact-finding documents. Based on the evidence, the arguments presented, and the law, the administrative law judge enters the following findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions of law, and decision.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: The claimant was employed full-time as a laborer on the mowing crew and was separated from employment on October 31, 2019, when he was discharged.

The claimant was discharged based upon a single incident which occurred on October 29, 2019. The employer stated the claimant had gone to the employer approved gas station and left the vehicle at the pump unattended for approximately 90 minutes while on the clock. Mr. Glaser did not witness the claimant at the gas station but received notification from other witnesses who did not attend the hearing. The employer reported it relied upon the review of the vehicle's GPS and another employee reporting to the employer that they saw the claimant on the side of the gas station pumping. Neither reports confirming the claimant's time away with the vehicle nor the witness who saw the claimant at the gas station were presented for the hearing.

The claimant asserted he took the vehicle to be gassed as authorized and took his break while there. It was estimated to be a ten minute drive each way and the claimant denied being gone for 90 minutes, but stated it was closer to 50 minutes. He was subsequently discharged.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes that the claimant was discharged for no disqualifying reason.

lowa law disqualifies individuals who are discharged from employment for misconduct from receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a. They remain disqualified until such time as they requalify for benefits by working and earning insured wages ten times their weekly benefit amount. Id.

Iowa Administrative Code rule 871-24.32(1)a provides:

"Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand, mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

In an at-will employment environment, an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation. The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. lowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (lowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. IDJS, 364 N.W.2d 262 (lowa App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. IDJS, 425 N.W.2d 679 (lowa App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. lowa Department of Job Service, 351 N.W.2d 806 (lowa App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee. See Gimbel v. Employment Appeal Board, 489 N.W.2d 36, 39 (lowa Ct. App. 1992).

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (lowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (lowa App. 1996).

In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id. Assessing the credibility of the witnesses and reliability of the evidence in conjunction with the applicable burden of proof, as shown in the factual conclusions reached in the above-noted findings of fact, the administrative law judge concludes that the employer has not satisfied its burden to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law.

Iowa Admin. Code r.871-24.32(8) provides:

- (8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act. lowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:
  - (4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Administrative agencies are not bound by the technical rules of evidence. IBP, Inc. v. Al-Gharib, 604 N.W.2d 621, 630 (Iowa 2000). A decision may be based upon evidence that would ordinarily be deemed inadmissible under the rules of evidence, as long as the evidence is not immaterial or irrelevant. Clark v. Iowa Dep't of Revenue, 644 N.W.2d 310, 320 (Iowa 2002). Hearsay evidence is admissible at administrative hearings and may constitute substantial evidence. Gaskey v. Iowa Dep't of Transp., 537 N.W.2d 695, 698 (Iowa 1995).

In the case at hand, the claimant appeared personally, provided sworn testimony, answered questions, and subjected himself to possibility of cross-examination. In contrast, the only evidence in support of the employer was hearsay evidence. The employer could not verify the times the claimant left and arrived back to the employer premises, when the coworker saw the claimant or other details of the 90 minutes it believed the claimant was improperly at the gas station. For unknown reasons, the employer chose not present any witness or report to verify the claimant's whereabouts. The claimant in contrast provided a reasonable explanation for his time away. In the absence of any other evidence of equal weight either explaining or contradicting the claimant's testimony, it is held that the weight of evidence is established in favor of the claimant.

The question before the administrative law judge in this case is not whether the employer has the right to discharge this employee, but whether the claimant's discharge is disqualifying under the provisions of the lowa Employment Security Law. While the decision to terminate the claimant may have been a sound decision from a management viewpoint, for the above stated reasons, the administrative law judge concludes that the employer has not sustained its burden of proof in establishing that the claimant's discharge was due to a final or current act of job related misconduct. Accordingly, benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

DECISION:

The November 14, 2019, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided he is otherwise eligible. The benefits claimed and withheld shall be paid, provided he is otherwise eligible.
