TONYA L STAUFFER
Claimant

APPEAL NO. 11A-UI-07471-JTT

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE
DECISION

CASEY'S GENERAL STORES
Employer

OC: 05/08/11
Claimant: Respondent (1)

Section 96.5(2)(a) – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed a timely appeal from the May 27, 2011, reference 01, decision that allowed benefits. After due notice was issued, a hearing was held on July 1, 2011. Claimant participated. Kara Dennis, manager, represented the employer. Exhibits One through Five were received into evidence.

ISSUE:

Whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct in connection with the employment that disqualifies the claimant for unemployment insurance benefits.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Tonya Stauffer was employed by Casey's as a full-time clerk from November 2010 until May 6, 2011, when Kara Dennis, manager, discharged her for attendance. Ms. Dennis was Ms. Stauffer's immediate supervisor. The final absence that prompted the discharge occurred on May 4, 2011, when Ms. Stauffer was absent due to illness but failed to properly notify the employer. The employer's written attendance policy required that Ms. Stauffer notify the employer prior to the scheduled start of her shift, though the employer preferred as much advance warning as possible. Ms. Stauffer had also been absent on April 29, May 1 and May 2 due to illness, but had provided proper notices. All of the absences related to ongoing migraine issues. When Ms. Stauffer appeared for work on May 6, she brought with her a doctor's note that referenced an appointment on May 2 and that asked that she be excused from work due to illness from May 2 through May 4. Ms. Stauffer had been absent on January 29, but failed to properly notify the employer.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Iowa Code section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

The employer has the burden of proof in this matter. See Iowa Code section 96.6(2). Misconduct must be substantial in order to justify a denial of unemployment benefits. Misconduct serious enough to warrant the discharge of an employee is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of unemployment benefits. See Lee v. Employment Appeal Board, 616 N.W.2d 661 (Iowa 2000). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee. See Gimbel v. Employment Appeal Board, 489 N.W.2d 36, 39 (Iowa Ct. App. 1992).

While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of the current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act(s). The termination of employment must be based on a current act. See 871 IAC 24.32(8). In determining whether the conduct that prompted the discharge constituted a "current act," the administrative law judge considers the date on which the conduct came to the attention of the employer and the date on which the employer notified the claimant that the conduct subjected the claimant to possible discharge. See also Greene v. EAB, 426 N.W.2d 659, 662 (Iowa App. 1988).

Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. See 871 IAC 24.32(4). When it is in a party's power to produce more direct and satisfactory evidence than is actually produced, it may fairly be inferred that the more direct evidence will expose deficiencies in that party's case. See Crosser v. Iowa Dept. of Public Safety, 240 N.W.2d 682 (Iowa 1976).

In order for a claimant's absences to constitute misconduct that would disqualify the claimant from receiving unemployment insurance benefits, the evidence must establish that the claimant's unexcused absences were excessive. See 871 IAC 24.32(7). The determination of whether absenteeism is excessive necessarily requires consideration of past acts and warnings. However, the evidence must first establish that the most recent absence that prompted the decision to discharge the employee was unexcused. See 871 IAC 24.32(8). Absences related to issues of personal responsibility such as transportation and oversleeping are considered unexcused. On the other hand, absences related to illness are considered excused, provided the employee has complied with the employer's policy regarding notifying the employer of the absence. Tardiness is a form of absence. See Higgins v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 350 N.W.2d 187 (Iowa 1984).

The weight of the evidence in the record establishes unexcused absences on January 28, 2011 and May 4, 2011. The final absence was attributable to illness, was supported by a doctor's note, but was not properly reported to the employer. The weight of the evidence establishes that Ms. Stauffer thought she had given proper notice to the employer of the May 4 absence, but had not in fact given such notice. Under the circumstances, the administrative law judge concludes that the two unexcused absences did not constitute excessive unexcused absence and, therefore, did not constitute misconduct in connection with the employment.

Based on the evidence in the record and application of the appropriate law, the administrative law judge concludes that Ms. Stauffer was discharged for no disqualifying reason. Accordingly, Ms. Stauffer is eligible for benefits, provided she is otherwise eligible. The employer's account may be charged for benefits paid to Ms. Stauffer.

DECISION:

The Agency representative's May 27, 2011, reference 01, decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged for no disqualifying reason. The claimant is eligible for benefits, provided she is otherwise eligible. The employer's account may be charged.
