Claimant: Appellant (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Claimant filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated October 19, 2022, (reference 01) which held claimant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a hearing was scheduled for and held on November 16, 2022. Employer participated by Mary Novacek and Brian Novacek.

ISSUE:

The issue in this matter is whether claimant was discharged for misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on September 7, 2022. Employer discharged claimant on September 7, 2022 because claimant was in multiple accidents with employer's vehicles causing extensive damage after verbal warning.

Claimant worked as an over-the-road driver for employer. In the year and a half that claimant drove for employer she went through a large number of truck tires with the way that she drove and she was involved in multiple accidents. In November of 2021, claimant made a bad turn in California damaging an oil pan. Then, a month later, claimant damaged another trailer at a Tyson plant when she backed into an idle trailer. The owner of the company stated that he spoke with claimant about how she could not be damaging equipment the way that she had been as it was too expensive. Claimant denied both of these incidents and further denied ever being spoken to or warned about accidents.

Claimant admitted that she was to blame for the accident that occurred on September 4, 2022. She said that she was tired, although she had been on a break for a number of days before the incident occurred and the electronic driving log showed that she had rested for many hours during the day.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

A claimant is not qualified to receive unemployment insurance benefits if an employer has discharged the claimant for reasons constituting work connected misconduct. Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a. Before a claimant can be denied unemployment insurance benefits, the employer has the burden to establish the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982), Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a.

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa Ct. App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. State v. Holtz, Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. State v. Holtz, Id. In this matter, the administrative law judge finds the claimant to be far less credible than the employer. The employer reached out to the other person involved in the accident and got an account of claimant dragging the trailer. Claimant then said that these dragging marks must have been from another trailer. This was not credible. It was also not credible that claimant didn't remember any of the other incidents she had incurred in the previous 18 months driving for employer, nor did she have any idea of the extent of the damage to the trailer she'd recently totaled.

The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. The lack of a current warning may detract from a finding of an intentional policy violation. It is believed that claimant was warned as claimant's statements of receiving no warnings are also not believable.

In this matter, the evidence established that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct when claimant violated employer's policy concerning driving safely. Claimant was warned concerning this policy.

The last incident, which brought about the discharge, constitutes misconduct because claimant continued to drive negligently after warnings causing damage to employer's vehicles. The administrative law judge holds that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct and, as such, is disqualified for the receipt of unemployment insurance benefits.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated October 19, 2022, (reference 01) is affirmed. Unemployment insurance benefits shall be withheld until claimant has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times claimant's weekly benefit amount, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.
