(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a - Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer appealed an unemployment insurance decision dated August 6, 2004, reference 02, that concluded the claimant's discharge was not for work-connected misconduct. A telephone hearing was held on September 9, 2004. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. The claimant participated in the hearing. Jeremy Mangrich participated in the hearing on behalf of the employer with a witness, Larry Green.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The claimant worked for the employer as a greeter from September 8, 2003 to May 22, 2004. The claimant was informed and understood that under the employer's work rules, the use of profanity in the workplace was prohibited. He had been warned for violating this rule in February 2004.

On May 22, 2004, the claimant was discharged for allegedly using profanity in the store toward another associate. The allegation is untrue, as the claimant did not direct profanity toward another associate on May 22, 2004.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue in this case is whether the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden to prove the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The propriety of a discharge is not at issue in an unemployment insurance case. An employer may be justified in discharging an employee, but the employee's conduct may not amount to misconduct precluding the payment of unemployment compensation. The law limits disqualifying misconduct to substantial and willful wrongdoing or repeated carelessness or negligence that equals willful misconduct in culpability. Lee v. Employment Appeal Board, 616 N.W.2d 661, 665 (Iowa 2000).

Work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law has not been established in this case. The employer presented only hearsay evidence from an unnamed person who alleged the claimant had used profanity in the store. The claimant credibly denied this allegation. The employer has not proven by the preponderance of the evidence that the claimant committed the misconduct alleged to have occurred on May 22.

DECISION:

The unemployment insurance decision dated August 6, 2004, reference 02, is affirmed. The claimant is qualified to receive unemployment insurance benefits, if he is otherwise eligible.
