APPEAL 23A-UI-08296-AR-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

OC: 07/23/23
Claimant: Respondent (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.10 – Employer/Representative Participation Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On August 28, 2023, the employer filed an appeal from the August 18, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that allowed benefits based on the determination that claimant was discharged without a showing of disqualifying misconduct. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on September 13, 2023. Claimant, Angela M. Arrick, participated. Employer, Walmart Inc., participated through Consumable Coach Ken Rosman and Talx representative Serena Roberson. Employer's Exhibits 1 through 6 were admitted. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?
Has the claimant been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?
Can charges to the employer's account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for employer on February 13, 2023. Claimant last worked as a full-time sales associate in the bakery. Claimant was separated from employment on July 24, 2023, when she was discharged.

Claimant and another employee, David, were in a tumultuous romantic relationship some time ago. The two continued to work together but did not get along.

On July 23, 2023, claimant's children had her car, so they were waiting out front of the store for claimant's shift to be over. At some point, David came out to the front of the store and passed claimant's children in their car more than once. Words were exchanged between David and claimant's children, including threats of violence. Claimant was not outside during the exchange, so she did not see what was happening. Witnesses reported the incident to Rosman who conducted an investigation. He took witness statements that indicated claimant had a history of making threatening statements about David to others in the store. Other witnesses to the incident on July 23, 2023, corroborated the reports that claimant's children were making threats of violence to employees around the time that they had been interacting with David. On July 24, 2023, Rosman called claimant and discharged her from employment for violation of the employer's violence-free workplace policy.

Claimant had made complaints about David's conduct to Rosman in the past. The only thing Rosman told claimant to do was to "keep to [her]self." Claimant felt her concerns were being disregarded.

Claimant had not received prior warnings related to the employer's violence-free workplace policy.

The administrative record indicates that claimant filed a claim for unemployment insurance benefits with an effective date of July 23, 2023. She has filed for and received benefit payments between August 20, 2023, and September 9, 2023. She has received a total benefit payment in the amount of $1,262.00. The employer did not substantially participate in the fact-finding interview. Although Roberson participated, by the time the fact-finding interview happened on August 16, 2023, the employer had not sent information regarding the separation to Roberson, so she could not provide information about the separation from employment to the fact finder.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

- (1) Material falsification of the individual's employment application.
- (2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.
- (3) Intentional damage of an employer's property.
- (4) Consumption of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in a manner not directed by the manufacturer, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies.
- (5) Reporting to work under the influence of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in an off-label manner, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies, unless the individual is compelled to work by the employer outside of scheduled or on-call working hours.
- (6) Conduct that substantially and unjustifiably endangers the personal safety of coworkers or the general public.
- (7) Incarceration for an act for which one could reasonably expect to be incarcerated that results in missing work.
- (8) Incarceration as a result of a misdemeanor or felony conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction.
- (9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.
- (10) Falsification of any work-related report, task, or job that could expose the employer or coworkers to legal liability or sanction for violation of health or safety laws.
- (11) Failure to maintain any license, registration, or certification that is reasonably required by the employer or by law, or that is a functional requirement to perform the individual's regular job duties, unless the failure is not within the control of the individual.
- (12) Conduct that is libelous or slanderous toward an employer or an employee of the employer if such conduct is not protected under state or federal law.
- (13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.
- (14) Intentional misrepresentation of time worked or work carried out that results in the individual receiving unearned wages or unearned benefits.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee.

Claimant undermined her credibility when she asserted that at no time did her children threaten David with bodily harm despite the employer's provided witness statements to the contrary. However, the administrative law judge believes claimant's testimony that she had concerns about David's conduct in the past that had gone unaddressed by the employer, and that David did participate in the incident that resulted in claimant's discharge. This gives rise to a question regarding whether the employer uniformly enforces its violence-free workplace policy. If the policy is not uniformly enforced, the claimant could not know with certainty that the conduct from July 23, 2023, would result in her discharge. The administrative law judge concludes that the employer has not carried its burden of establishing that claimant engaged in disqualifying misconduct. The separation is not disqualifying.

Because the separation is not disqualifying, the issues of overpayment, repayment, and participation are moot.

DECISION:

The August 18, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is AFFIRMED. Claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided claimant is otherwise eligible. The issues of overpayment, repayment, and participation are moot.
