APPEAL 22A-UI-09146-S2-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

OC: 03/20/22
Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quit

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The claimant filed an appeal from the April 7, 2021, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based upon a finding that claimant was discharged because she failed to perform satisfactory work. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on May 23, 2022. Claimant Tonya N. Garcia participated. The employer Ameriserve International, Inc. participated through chief financial officer Steven Pearson and controller Chelsea Acosta. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record, including the available fact-finding documents.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant was employed full time as a financial coordinator from September 7, 2018, until March 18, 2022, when she was discharged.

The final incident leading to discharge occurred on March 16, 2022. On that date, claimant attempted to delete some file shortcut from her computer. Rather than deleting the shortcuts, claimant deleted 6,000 of employer's files. When employer discovered the deletion, claimant showed the controller how she performed the task according to her training and explained the deletion of the actual files was an accident. A compliance employee informed claimant the files could be retrieved. Employer suspended claimant immediately while it investigated the file deletion. The investigation did not show that the deletion was intentional or malicious, but employer discharged claimant for the deletion, specifically due to unsatisfactory work performance.

Claimant received three written warnings, on December 22, 2021, and January 11 and 28, 2022. These warnings were given for unsatisfactory work performance, for paying bills late, failing to timely reconcile bank accounts, and not timely filing reports for benefits. Claimant was promoted to the financial coordinator position in May 2021, and additional job duties were assigned to claimant in the fall of 2021, but she did not receive adequate training. Claimant asked her supervisor for additional training or assistance so that she could timely complete these duties, and she was told not to worry because they were not the most important priorities for claimant at that time, and that she would receive additional training in the future.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Further, the employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation. A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy.

The conduct for which claimant was discharged was merely an isolated incident of poor judgment. Claimant deleted a large number of files, but she believed she was deleting the shortcuts to the files, and not the files themselves. There is no indication that claimant intentionally deleted the files. Claimant was careless, but the carelessness does not indicate "such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design" such that it could accurately be called misconduct. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)(a); Greenwell v. Emp't Appeal Bd., No. 15-0154 (Iowa Ct. App. Mar. 23, 2016). Ordinary negligence is all that is proven here. Because the employer has failed to establish disqualifying misconduct, benefits are allowed, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.

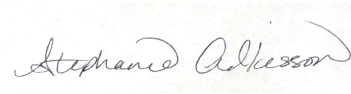

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(5) provides:

(5) Trial period. A dismissal, because of being physically unable to do the work, being not capable of doing the work assigned, not meeting the employer's standards, or having been hired on a trial period of employment and not being able to do the work shall not be issues of misconduct.

Additionally, failure in job performance due to inability or incapacity is not considered misconduct because the actions were not volitional. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979). Where an individual is discharged due to a failure in job performance, proof of that individual's ability to do the job is required to justify disqualification, rather than accepting the employer's subjective view. To do so is to impermissibly shift the burden of proof to the claimant. Kelly v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 386 N.W.2d 552 (Iowa Ct. App. 1986). Here, employer contends claimant previously was capable of performing satisfactory work. However, both parties agree that when claimant was promoted and took on additional job duties that was unable to stay on top of the duties and deadlines and fell behind. Claimant sought help and additional training, but she did not receive the assistance she requested. Since the employer agreed that claimant had never had a sustained period of time during which she performed her job duties to employer's satisfaction as a financial coordinator and inasmuch as she did attempt to perform the job to the best of her ability but was unable to meet its expectations, no intentional misconduct has been established, as is the employer's burden of proof. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The April 7, 2022, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. Claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided she is otherwise eligible. Any benefits claimed and withheld on this basis shall be paid.
