Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated January 30, 2006, reference 01, which held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a telephone conference hearing was scheduled for and held on February 22, 2006. Claimant participated personally. Employer participated by Susan Miller, Employment and Benefits Coordinator and Kaye Seward, Vascular Manager. Exhibit One was admitted into evidence.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on January 10, 2006.

Claimant was discharged on January 10, 2006 by employer because claimant was absent due to illness for three days in a row. Claimant called in and left messages for her supervisor prior to the start of shift on each day. Claimant also called the front desk and left messages for the supervisor each day. The messages were left prior to the start of shift. Claimant was ill and undergoing tests. Claimant again each day tried to contact her supervisor at the work phone to no avail. Employer's policy calls for claimant to speak direct to the supervisor for reporting an absence. Claimant was given the supervisors cell number and home number in the past but left such at work. Claimant did not have those numbers with her when she was sick. Employer received the messages but did not return the call until it was time to discharge claimant. Claimant supervisor was rarely available at her desk to accept a call. There was a prior warning on claimant's record for an absence due to illness.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue in this matter is whether claimant was discharged for misconduct.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

871 IAC 24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

In this matter, the evidence fails to establish that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct when claimant violated employer's policy concerning absenteeism. Claimant was not warned concerning this policy.

The last incident, which brought about the discharge, fails to constitute misconduct because absences due to illness are excusable if properly reported. Claimant could not reach her supervisor at work as the supervisor was rarely available by telephone. Claimant did not have the cell or home number of the supervisor. However claimant did try earnestly to contact the supervisor three times a day on all days leaving a number where she could be reached. The supervisor failed to follow up with a call which could have resolved this on the very first day. The reporting made by claimant was in good faith. Leaving a number asking for a return call is not unreasonable when an employee is sick and undergoing treatment. The absences were properly reported. Benefits allowed. The administrative law judge holds that claimant was not discharged for an act of misconduct and, as such, is not disqualified for the receipt of unemployment insurance benefits.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated January 30, 2006, reference 01, is affirmed. Claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
