ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

OPEN ARMS HOME HEALTH CARE

Employer

OC: 05/16/21

Claimant: Appellant (1)

lowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct lowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quit

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The claimant filed an appeal from the July 22, 2021, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based upon a finding that claimant was discharged due to insubordination. A hearing was scheduled for September 17, 2021, pursuant to due notice. Employer requested postponement of the hearing due to the unavailability of its witness. The request was granted and the parties were properly notified of the rescheduled hearing date. A telephone hearing was held on October 4, 2021. Claimant Temetria S. Pope participated. Employer Open Arms Home Health Care participated through nursing administrator Jane Jones. Employer's Exhibits 1 – 8 were admitted into the record.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant was employed full time as a home health aide from June 6, 2018, until May 17, 2021, when she was discharged.

Employer requested claimant meet with her supervisor Jenny Bloom and Ms. Jones on May 17, 2021, to discuss a corrective action claimant was receiving due to attendance concerns. During the meeting, claimant refused to speak directly to Ms. Bloom and spoke about her as if she was not in the room. Ms. Jones directed claimant to speak to Ms. Bloom directly on multiple occasions during the meeting, but claimant refused to do so, stating she did not have to speak to anyone she did not want to. Later that day, employer terminated claimant for insubordination for refusing its orders to speak directly to her supervisor during the meeting.

On September 25, 2020, employer gave claimant a corrective action for insubordination for refusing to attend a meeting with her then-supervisor and Ms. Jones to discuss a corrective action. Claimant refused to attend the meeting with both of them present and would only meet with her supervisors individually.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct.

lowa Code § 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

- 2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
- a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

- (1) Definition.
- a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the lowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (lowa 1979).

Further, the employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (lowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (lowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (lowa Ct. App. 1988).

The decision in this case rests, at least in part, on the credibility of the witnesses. It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728

N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (lowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (lowa App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id.

The findings of fact show how the disputed factual issues were resolved. After assessing the credibility of the witnesses who testified during the hearing, reviewing the exhibits submitted by the parties, considering the applicable factors listed above, and using her own common sense and experience, the administrative law judge finds the employer's version of events to be more credible than the claimant's recollection of those events.

An employee's failure to perform a specific task may not constitute misconduct if such failure is in good faith or for good cause. See Woods v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 327 N.W.2d 768, 771 (lowa 1982). "[W]illful misconduct can be established where an employee manifests an intent to disobey the reasonable instructions of his employer." Myers v. IDJS, 373 N.W.2d 507, 510 (lowa 1983) (quoting Sturniolo v. Commonwealth, Unemployment Compensation Bd. of Review, 19 Cmwlth. 475, 338 A.2d 794, 796 (1975)); Pierce v. IDJS, 425 N.W.2d 679, 680 (lowa Ct. App. 1988).

In insubordination cases, the reasonableness of the employer's demand in light of the circumstances must be evaluated, along with the worker's reason for non-compliance. See Endicott v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 367 N.W.2d 300 (lowa Ct. App. 1985). The key to such cases is not the worker's subjective point of view but "what a reasonable person would have believed under the circumstances." Aalbers v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 431 N.W.2d 330, 337 (lowa 1988); accord O'Brien v. EAB, 494 N.W.2d 660 (lowa 1993)(objective good faith is test in quits for good cause). For example, in Green v. IDJS, 299 N.W.2d 651 (lowa 1980) an employee refused to sign a warning to acknowledge that she understood why she was being warned. The Court found the refusal to be disqualifying as a matter of law, and did not focus on whether the warning was justified or not. Green at 655. The claimant's actions in refusing to do as told "show[ed] an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer." 871 IAC 24.32(1)(a).

"[W]illful misconduct can be established where an employee manifests an intent to disobey the reasonable instructions of his employer." Myers v. IDJS, 373 N.W.2d 507, 510 (lowa 1983).

Here, employer made a reasonable request to have claimant speak directly to her supervisor during a meeting, rather than acting as though she was not present. Claimant did not comply with the request. Claimant willfully refused to comply with Jones' order. Employer has an interest in having employees follow reasonable instruction from their supervisors. Claimant deliberately disregarded the employer's interest on May 17, 2021, when she refused to speak to her supervisor as directed. Further, employer has presented substantial and credible evidence that claimant engaged in insubordination after having been warned. This is disqualifying misconduct. As such, benefits are denied.

DECISION:

The July 22, 2021, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as she has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times her weekly benefit amount, provided she is otherwise eligible.
