Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The claimant filed an appeal from the February 2, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based upon claimant's discharge from employment. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on February 28, 2023. The claimant, Susan Dearmond, participated personally. The employer, Fareway Stores Inc, participated through witness Brandon Morlan and Stephanie Rohrer. Employer's Exhibits 1-13 were offered and admitted without objection.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds:

The claimant was hired on August 8, 2022 as a grocery clerk. At the time of her separation from employment, the claimant was working on a full-time basis. Douglas Hougland was the claimant's immediate supervisor. The last day the claimant physically worked for the employer was January 12, 2023. The claimant was discharged from employment on January 13, 2023 for absences and failure to follow instructions.

The claimant was informed that it was her responsibility to stay in the fast lane to ensure customers were paying for their products. The claimant allowed a customer to leave the store without paying for a product on two occasions on January 12, 2023.

On January 3, 2023 the claimant was refunding market items and did not refund the appropriate items for the appropriate department.

The final incident leading to the claimant's discharge occurred on December 31, 2022. The claimant notified the employer that she would be at work and would be on hour late. The claimant did not have any leave time available to cover for her absence.

On December 30, 2022, the claimant was absent from work and called in to notify the employer that she would not be at work that day.

On December 29, 2022 the claimant did not return from her lunch break. The claimant notified the employer over her lunch break that she would not be returning because she failed to take her medicine.

On December 8, 2022 the claimant had to leave work early due to a tire issue. The claimant was also late arriving to work.

On November 18, 2022 the claimant was unable to perform her duties due to outside circumstances.

On November 5, 2022 the claimant left her shift early without notifying management.

The claimant was told by management it is her responsibility to stay in the fast lane to ensure customers are paying for their products. On January 12, 2023, the claimant allowed two customers to leave the store without paying for their products. See Exhibits 3 and 4.

The claimant had been advised that no market items could be refunded without first being approved. The claimant had violated this policy on multiple occasions and had been repeatedly warned of the policy. The final incident regarding refunding of market items without first seeking approval was on January 3, 2023. On January 3, 2023 the claimant refunded a market without first seeking approval.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged for job-related misconduct. Benefits are denied.

As a preliminary matter, I find that the Claimant did not quit. Claimant was discharged from employment.

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r.871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id. After assessing the credibility of the witnesses who testified during the hearing, considering the applicable factors listed above, and using her own common sense and experience, the Administrative Law Judge finds that the employer's testimony and supporting documentation is more credible than the claimant's testimony.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus of the administrative code definition of misconduct is on deliberate, intentional or culpable acts by the employee. Id. When based on carelessness, the carelessness must actually indicate a “wrongful intent” to be disqualifying in nature. Id. Negligence does not constitute misconduct unless recurrent in nature; a single act is not disqualifying unless indicative of a deliberate disregard of the employer’s interests. Henry v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 391 N.W.2d 731 (Iowa Ct. App. 1986). Further, poor work performance is not misconduct in the absence of evidence of intent. Miller v. Emp’t Appeal Bd., 423 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). The law limits disqualifying misconduct to substantial and willful wrongdoing or repeated carelessness or negligence that equals willful misconduct in culpability. Lee v. Employment Appeal Bd., 616 N.W.2d 661 (Iowa 2000). A lapse of 11 days from final act until discharge when claimant was notified on fourth day that his conduct was grounds for dismissal did not make final act a “past act”. Greene v. Emp’t Appeal Bd., 426 N.W.2d 659 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988).

This was not an incident of carelessness or poor work performance. Claimant had been warned that it was her job to stay in the fast lane and ensure customers paid for items. On January 12, 2023, the claimant was allowed two customers to leave the store without paying for their items. The claimant further refunded items to customers without first receiving approval. The claimant was aware of her duties of ensuring customers paid for their items, and allowed the customer to leave the store without paying for items. This behavior is a substantial violation of the client’s policies and procedures.

The employer has a right to expect that an employee will not jeopardize the liability of the employer by intentionally violating policies that are in place. There is substantial evidence in the record to support the conclusion that claimant deliberately violated these rightful expectations in this case. Accordingly, the employer has met its burden of proof in establishing that the claimant’s conduct consisted of deliberate acts that constituted an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer’s interests. These actions rise to the level of willful misconduct. As such, benefits are denied.

DECISION:

The February 2, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. Claimant was discharged from employment for job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld in regards to this employer until such time as claimant is deemed eligible.
