APPEAL 24A-UI-04912-PT-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

THE VGM GROUP INC
Employer

OC: 04/14/24
Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The claimant, Kellie Hadzic, filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated May 14, 2024, (reference 01) that held the claimant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits after a separation from employment. After due notice, a telephone hearing was held on June 7, 2024. The claimant participated personally. The employer, The VGM Group, Inc., participated through Human Resources Generalist Stephanie Manvrich. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: The claimant began working for The VGM Group, Inc., as a full-time patient care coordinator on April 24, 2023. The claimant was separated from employment on April 17, 2024, when she was discharged.

As a patient care coordinator, the claimant was responsible for scheduling medical appointments for worker's compensation patients, which required contacting insurers, clinics, medical providers, and adjusters daily for each patient she was assigned. The employer has a written employee manual containing its work rules, policies, and a general description of the claimant's job duties. Pursuant to the employer's work rules, the claimant was required to complete a "grid" of all patients assigned to her each day. The claimant received a copy of the employee manual and was generally familiar with the employer's work rules and policies.

During her employment with The VGM Group, Inc, the claimant consistently worked hard, took pride in her work, and strove to learn from her mistakes. However, despite giving her best effort, the claimant was slow at completing certain job tasks and she occasionally made mistakes.

In August 2023, the claimant fell behind on her work and she failed to complete her full "grid" of patients for several days in a row. On August 15, 2023, the claimant's supervisor coached and counseled the claimant on her job duties and provided advice as to how to work through her “grid” more effectively. In September and October 2023, the employer temporarily reduced the claimant’s workload and occasionally assigned other employees to assist the claimant with her work. With the additional help, the claimant was able to consistently complete her “grid” and, on November 6, 2023, the employer removed the coach and counsel from the claimant’s record.

After removing the coach and counsel, the employer increased the claimant’s workload to its previous level and stopped assigning other employees to assist the claimant with her work. Over the next several months, the claimant slowly fell behind on her orders and a backlog of work developed. On February 1, 2024, the employer issued the claimant another coach and counsel due to failing to complete her orders in a timely manner and for making minor mistakes on several orders. The employer informed the claimant that the coach and counsel would be reviewed on March 1, 2024, to determine whether she had shown satisfactory improvement.

On March 1, 2024, the employer reviewed the claimant’s work and issued the claimant a corrective action notice for failing to complete her orders in a timely manner. The corrective action notice warned the claimant that she must complete her assigned “grids” each day and submit all orders in a timely manner. Additionally, the notice instructed the claimant to email her supervisor each time an order was completed, thereby creating even more work.

The claimant did her best to try to complete her work each day. However, despite giving her best effort, she continued to struggle completing her “grids” and her backlog of work increased. On March 21, 2024, the employer issued the claimant a final corrective action warning for failing to complete her work in a timely manner. The disciplinary notice informed the claimant that failure to demonstrate immediate and sustained improvement in timely completing her orders would result in further discipline up to and including termination of employment.

Despite receiving the final written warning, the claimant was unable to meet the employer’s performance expectations. On April 17, 2024, the employer called the claimant into a meeting and informed the claimant that her employment was being terminated effective immediately due to unsatisfactory work performance.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual’s wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual’s employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual’s weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.32(5) provides:

(5) Trial period. A dismissal, because of being physically unable to do the work, being not capable of doing the work assigned, not meeting the employer's standards, or having been hired on a trial period of employment and not being able to do the work shall not be issues of misconduct.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job-related misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating the claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee.

When based on carelessness, the carelessness must actually indicate a "wrongful intent" to be disqualifying in nature. Id. Negligence does not constitute misconduct unless recurrent in nature; a single act is not disqualifying unless indicative of a deliberate disregard of the employer's interests. Henry v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 391 N.W.2d 731 (Iowa Ct. App. 1986). Poor work performance is not misconduct in the absence of evidence of intent. Miller v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 423 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Co., 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990); however, "Balky and argumentative" conduct is not necessarily disqualifying. City of Des Moines v. Picray, (No. 85-919, Iowa Ct. App. Filed June 25, 1986).

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id.

The findings of fact show how I have resolved the disputed factual issues in this case. I assessed the credibility of the witnesses who testified during the hearing, considering the applicable factors listed above, and using my own common sense and experience. I find the claimant's testimony that she tried to follow the employer's instructions and perform her job to the best of her ability credible. The administrative law judge concludes the claimant did not intentionally fail to perform the duties and expectations of her position.

Failure in job performance due to inability or incapacity is not considered misconduct because the actions were not volitional. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979). Mere incapacity or incompetence is not disqualifying. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)(a); Eaton v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 376 N.W.2d 915, 917 (Iowa App. 1985); Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa 1984). Where an individual is discharged due to a failure in job performance, proof of that individual's ability to do the job is required to justify disqualification, rather than accepting the employer's subjective view. To simply accept the employer's subjective view is to impermissibly shift the burden of proof to the claimant. See Kelly v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 386 N.W.2d 552 (Iowa App. 1986).

In this case, the employer has failed to show that the claimant ever had a sustained period of time during which she performed her job duties to the employer's satisfaction. Inasmuch as the claimant did attempt to perform the job to the best of her ability, but was unable to meet the employer's expectations, no intentional misconduct has been established, as is the employer's burden of proof. Accordingly, no disqualification is imposed. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

DECISION:

The May 14, 2024 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. The claimant was discharged from employment on April 17, 2024, for no disqualifying reason. The claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided the claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
