Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Claimant filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated March 8, 2006, reference 01, which held claimant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a telephone conference hearing was scheduled for and held on April 6, 2006. Claimant participated personally. Employer participated by Brian Coy, Human Resource Generalist.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on February 16, 2006.

Claimant was discharged on February 16, 2006 by employer because claimant lost his Iowa Racing and Gaming Commission license. Claimant was charged with a misdemeanor. Claimant pled not guilty. The Gaming Commission automatically suspends a gaming license when someone is charged. Employer, pursuant to policy and not Gaming Commission rule, discharges all employees who lose their license. Claimant is eligible for rehire if he beats the charge within 60 days.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue in this matter is whether claimant was discharged for misconduct.

Iowa Code section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

871 IAC 24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

In this matter, the evidence fails to establish that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct when claimant violated employer's policy concerning license suspension. Claimant was warned concerning this policy.

The last incident, which brought about the discharge, fails to constitute misconduct because a criminal charge is not an intentional act. The charges do not prove an intentional act perpetrated by claimant. The charges only prove probable cause. Claimant's in-person and sworn testimony is more credible than the charges. As an issue of law claimant's testimony must be accepted as correct. Claimant therefore did not commit a criminal act. Claimant has the right to petition for reinstatement of his license from the Gaming Commission if he is found not guilty. Claimant does not have the right to get his job back after 60 days expire. The 60-day rule is somewhat arbitrary in light of the 90-day rule for a speedy trial. It is difficult to imagine any criminal violation making it to trial in 60 days. Claimant only has the right to reapply for work. In essence, claimant was discharged for a crime that has not been proven. Employer's rules are stricter than that of the Gaming Commission. The administrative law judge holds that claimant was not discharged for an act of misconduct and, as such, is not disqualified for the receipt of unemployment insurance benefits.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated March 8, 2006, reference 01, is reversed. Claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
