Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge from Employment
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer/Representative Participation in Fact-Finding

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On August 7, 2023, employer ADM Trucking Inc. filed an appeal from the July 27, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that allowed benefits after the employer discharged Kenneth K. Frazee (“claimant”) from employment, determining claimant was discharged for no willful or deliberate misconduct. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephonic hearing was held at 8:00 a.m. on Wednesday, August 23, 2023. Claimant Kenneth K. Frazee participated. Attorney Jon Hoffmann represented the claimant. Claimant’s wife, Dawn Frazee, observed the hearing. Employer ADM Trucking Inc. participated through Michael Hammerand, manager. No exhibits were admitted into the record, as no exhibits were received at the time of the hearing. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?
Has the claimant been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?
Can charges to the employer’s account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for this employer on December 4, 1995. Most recently, he worked full-time hours as a truck driver. Claimant’s employment ended on April 26, 2023, when the employer discharged him for theft.

On April 20, 2023, claimant was driving a route to St. Louis in his work semi. He stopped at a Pilot station to fuel his semi, using the company credit card at the pump to pay for the transaction. While fueling, claimant also filled up a five-gallon yellow fuel jug and paid for this fuel with the company credit card. Claimant then put the full fuel jug in the cab of the truck, completed fueling the semi, and continued on his way. When claimant arrived at the terminal in Camanche, he took the fuel jug out of the truck cab, put it into the back of his personal vehicle, and left work.

Hammerand learned about this by watching camera footage from the semi and seeing claimant's actions through the reflection in the mirrors. He called claimant into the office on April 21 to question him about his actions, and claimant explained that he had filled up the fuel jug for personal use and then paid cash or used his own credit/debit card to purchase the diesel after fueling. Claimant told Hammerand that "Brenda" at one of the Pilot stations had told him this was acceptable. Hammerand instructed claimant to find his receipt or find documentation from the bank showing his fuel purchase. Additionally, Hammerand contacted the Pilot stations, and both Brenda and manager Leah indicated all fuel transactions require pre-payment.

The morning of April 22, Hammerand called claimant to ask if he had found any receipts or documents related to the personal fuel purchases. Claimant replied that he had not had an opportunity to look. Hammerand emphasized the importance of finding this documentation and told him to call back at 2:30 p.m. after looking for the documents. Claimant never called back, and he never provided any documentation. At that point, the employer determined that claimant would be discharged. Hammerand believes that every employee knows theft from the employer would lead to the immediate end of their employment.

Hammerand believes claimant's fuel theft had been happening for years. Claimant began by filling up empty jugs that previously held windshield washer fluid, and he worked upwards from there. For a number of years, mechanics had complained that claimant's truck cab had smelled of diesel when the vehicle was brought in for maintenance. Hammerand began reviewing claimant's truck camera video in March, and by mid-April he felt he had enough evidence to prove what claimant's theft.

The administrative record reflects that claimant has received unemployment benefits in the amount of $3,020.00, since filing a claim with an effective date of July 2, 2023, for the five weeks ending August 19, 2023. The administrative record also establishes that the employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview, make a first-hand witness available for rebuttal, or provide written documentation that, without rebuttal, would have resulted in disqualification.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment for disqualifying misconduct.

Separation from Employment

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

d. For the purposes of this subsection, “misconduct” means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee’s contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer’s interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer’s interests or of the employee’s duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

(13) Theft of an employer or coworker’s funds or property.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

Iowa Admin. Code r.871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

Conduct asserted to be disqualifying misconduct must be current. West v. Emp’t Appeal Bd., 489 N.W.2d 731 (Iowa 1992); Greene v. Emp’t Appeal Bd., 426 N.W.2d 659 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Whether the act is current is measured by the time elapsing between the employer’s awareness of the misconduct and the employer’s notice to the employee that the conduct provides grounds for dismissal. Id. at 662. Here, Hammerand began collecting and reviewing video evidence of claimant’s theft in March 2023. After collecting multiple videos and concluding claimant was, in fact, stealing from the employer by purchasing diesel with the company credit card and taking the diesel for personal use, Hammerand confronted claimant with the evidence. I find claimant was discharged for a current act of misconduct.

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness’s testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness’s appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness’s interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id.

The findings of fact show how I have resolved the disputed factual issues in this case. I assessed the credibility of the witnesses who testified during the hearing, considering the applicable factors listed above, and using my own common sense and experience. I find Hammerand provided a credible description of what he saw when reviewing video of claimant fueling at the Pilot station. He recounted what he saw in specific and believable detail, from the order of events to the color of the fuel jug. Claimant gave one explanation for the jug-fueling to Hammerand, and he offered a contradictory explanation during the hearing. His reason for the difference – “I don’t tell my employer anything they don’t need to know” – does not hold water, primarily because at the time he was questioned by Hammerand on April 21, that information was absolutely something the employer needed to know.

The credible evidence in the record shows claimant put five gallons of diesel into a yellow fuel jug and paid for that fuel with the company credit card. He then put that jug into his personal vehicle and drove off the property. The employer has established claimant was discharged for disqualifying theft of company property. Benefits are withheld.

Overpayment, Repayment, and Participation

The next issues are whether claimant has been overpaid benefits, whether the claimant must repay those benefits, and whether the employer’s account will be charged. Iowa Code § 96.3(7)a-b, as amended in 2008, provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer’s account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department’s request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual’s separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if un rebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the quit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871—subrule 24.32\(7\). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) "A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits," pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer's representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) "Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual," as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)“b” as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

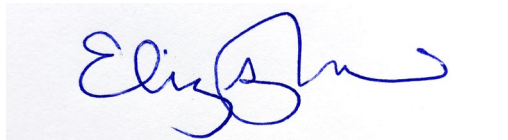

Because the claimant’s separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which he was not entitled. The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant’s employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The employer will not be charged for benefits if it is determined that they did participate in the fact-finding interview. Iowa Code § 96.3(7), Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10.

In this case, the claimant has received benefits but was not eligible for those benefits. Since the employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview the claimant is not obligated to repay to the agency the benefits he received, and the employer’s account shall be charged.

DECISION:

The July 27, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. Claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as he has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times his weekly benefit amount, provided he is otherwise eligible.

The claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $3,020.00 and is not obligated to repay the agency those benefits. The employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview and its account shall be charged.
