Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3-7 – Recovery of Overpayment of Benefits
871 IA Admin. Code 24(10) – Employer Participation in Fact Finding

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated March 8, 2023, (reference 01) which held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a hearing was scheduled for and held on March 29, 2023. Claimant participated personally. Employer participated by Brian Bedard and Art McGowan.

ISSUES:

Whether claimant was discharged for misconduct?

Whether claimant was overpaid benefits?

If claimant was overpaid benefits, should claimant repay benefits or should employer be charged due to employer's participation or lack thereof in fact finding?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on February 15, 2023. Employer discharged claimant on February 16, 2023 over the phone because employer believed claimant was dishonest when he stated he had given training to supervisors on a production process.

Claimant worked as a manager for employer. As a manager, part of his responsibilities included overseeing the actions of supervisors. Claimant was instructed on or around February 1, 2023 as to the proper procedures for operating a production piece of equipment. Claimant was told to teach the supervisors the process for properly operating the machine as they might be called upon to use it. He was given approximately ten days to do this.

At the end of the time period, claimant was asked if he'd taught the other supervisors. He replied that he had. In reality, claimant taught three of the five supervisors on his side of the plant how to operate the equipment, and none of the supervisors on the other side of the plant.

Claimant stated that one of the other supervisors who wasn't taught was off from work, and the other person he did teach through pictures and explanation, although he did not take her to the actual machine to teach her.

Employer had a meeting with supervisors that included supervisors from the other side of the plant on or around February 15, 2023. At the meeting, the plant manager asked if they'd been taught how to use the machine in question. Only one of the five supervisors present raised his hand.

Employer believed that claimant was dishonest in saying he'd taught the supervisors, and terminated him for that dishonesty as it was in violation of employer's Standards of Conduct, which are located in the employee's handbook claimant received at the time of hire.

Claimant stated that he didn't believe he was asked to train the supervisors on the other end of the building as they very rarely work on the north end. Claimant also stated that he didn't tell the plant manager that he hadn't completed the training with the supervisors on the north end as he didn't believe the plant manager was listening to him.

Claimant has received state unemployment benefits in the amount of $1,186.00.

Employer did substantially participate in fact finding in this matter by participating in the phone interview with an IWD representative.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Iowa Code section 96.3(7)a-b, as amended in 2008, provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if unrebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the quit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871—subrule 24.32(7). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) "A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits," pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer's representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) "Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual," as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)"b" as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

A claimant is not qualified to receive unemployment insurance benefits if an employer has discharged the claimant for reasons constituting work connected misconduct. Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a. Before a claimant can be denied unemployment insurance benefits, the employer has the burden to establish the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982), Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a.

The employer bears the burden of proving that a claimant is disqualified from receiving benefits because of substantial misconduct within the meaning of Iowa Code section 96.5(2). Myers, 462 N.W.2d at 737. The propriety of a discharge is not at issue in an unemployment insurance case. An employer may be justified in discharging an employee, but the employee's conduct may not amount to misconduct precluding the payment of unemployment compensation. Because our unemployment compensation law is designed to protect workers from financial hardships when they become unemployed through no fault of their own, we construe the provisions "liberally to carry out its humane and beneficial purpose." Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 570 N.W.2d 85, 96 (Iowa 1997). "[C]ode provisions which operate to work a forfeiture of benefits are strongly construed in favor of the claimant." Diggs v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 478 N.W.2d 432, 434 (Iowa Ct. App. 1991).

Looking at this matter, the administrative law judge divides it into two parts – the training of the north side supervisors and the training of the south side supervisors. Regarding the south side supervisors, the administrative law judge finds that the employer did not make it abundantly clear that both the north and south side supervisors were to be trained. This could have been done through an email or a letter specifically laying out what was to be done. As there was confusion as to who was to be trained, the claimant is not found to have committed misconduct in not training those supervisors as the employer did not show that claimant intended to deceive.

Regarding the lack of completion of training the supervisors on the north side, this is a more difficult matter. The claimant did not fully train the female supervisor, only going over pictures of the equipment and talking things over with her, although he knew the training was to be hands on. Additionally, the claimant did not alert management that he did not get to train the supervisor who was out on leave during the time of training. Absent this alert, and if employer had not further explored the issue, many supervisors would have been left without the actual training that was necessary not to cause failed product and money for the employer. Claimant could easily have explained what he did with the two north side supervisors that were not fully trained. He could have mentioned that one was away and hadn't been trained and the other was only able to be trained through pictures, and not hands on training.

In this matter, the evidence established that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct when claimant violated employer's policy concerning honesty to employer.

The last incident, which brought about the discharge, constitutes misconduct because claimant stated he wasn't honest as to the particulars of where the training stood because he didn't believe the plant manager was listening to him. This is a poor way to attempt to pass blame onto another party. Claimant was obligated to tell where the training actually stood when confronted, but chose not to do so. The administrative law judge holds that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct and, as such, is disqualified for the receipt of unemployment insurance benefits.

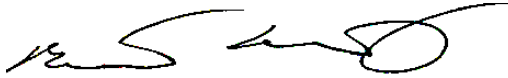

The overpayment issue was addressed. Claimant has received $1,186.00 in unemployment benefits. Said payments are overpayments.

The issue of employer participation was addressed. Employer did substantially participate in fact finding through its statements in the phone interview.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated March 8, 2023, (reference 01) is reversed. Unemployment insurance benefits shall be withheld until claimant has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times claimant's weekly benefit amount, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.

The claimant has been overpaid $ 1,186.00 in regular unemployment insurance benefits, and he is obligated to repay the agency those benefits. The employer did participate in the fact-finding interview and its account shall not be charged.
