(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct
Section 96.3-7 – Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Papetti's of Iowa (employer) appealed a representative's October 29, 2003 decision (reference 01) that concluded Greg Passley (claimant) was discharged and there was no evidence of willful or deliberate misconduct. A hearing was held on February 12, 2004, following due notice pursuant to Remand Order of the Employment Appeal Board dated January 16, 2004. The claimant participated personally. The employer participated by Be Lawrence, Human Resources Representative; and Jose Yzaguirre; Production Supervisor.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds that: The claimant was hired on February 21, 2003, as a full-time lead person. The claimant signed that he understood the employer's rules embodied in the employer's handbook on February 21, 2003. The claimant worked in a factory environment where profanity was common among subordinates. He did not receive any warnings during his employment.

On August 25, 2003, a subordinate of the claimant was not at her work area after break. The claimant found the subordinate in the break room and asked her to return to work. The subordinate made a vulgar gesture to the claimant and said, "Fuck you". The claimant told her to "get your shit and get up stairs". The claimant returned to his job. Ten minutes later the subordinate returned to her work area. The work area was loud and the two had to yell to be heard. The claimant and the subordinate argued. The subordinate told the claimant to "kiss my fucking ass". The claimant told the subordinate to "move your fucking nose". The claimant also called the subordinate a "bitch".

The employer suspended the claimant for his profane language on August 26, 2003, and terminated him on September 2, 2003. The subordinate was also terminated.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue is whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct. For the following reasons the administrative law judge concludes he was.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). Foul language of itself can constitute disqualifying job misconduct. Warrell v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 356 N.W.2d 587 (Iowa App. 1984). "The use of profanity or offensive language in a confrontational, disrespectful, or name-calling context may be recognized as misconduct, even in the case of isolated incidents or situations in which the target of abusive name-calling is not present when the vulgar statements are initially made." This is ordinarily a fact question for the agency. Budding v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 337 N.W.2d 219 (Iowa App. 1983) is overruled "to the extent [it] contradicts this position. Myers v. Employment Appeal Board, 462 N.W.2d 734 (Iowa App. 1990). An employer has a right to expect employees to conduct themselves in a certain manner. The claimant disregarded the employer's right by using profanity in dealing with a subordinate and calling a subordinate a name. The claimant's disregard of the employer's interests is misconduct. As such he is not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits.

Iowa Code Section 96.3-7 provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5.

The claimant has received benefits in the amount of $2,985.53 since filing his claim herein. Pursuant to this decision, those benefits now constitute an overpayment which must be repaid.

DECISION:

The representative's October 29, 2003 decision (reference 01) is reversed. The claimant is not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because he was discharged from work for misconduct. Benefits are withheld until he has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times his weekly benefit amount provided he is otherwise eligible. The claimant is overpaid benefits in the amount of $2,985.53.
