(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a - Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer appealed an unemployment insurance decision dated January 17, 2006, reference 01, that concluded the claimant's discharge was not for work-connected misconduct. A telephone hearing was held on February 14, 2006. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. The claimant participated in the hearing. Steve Huff participated in the hearing on behalf of the employer with witnesses, Brett Regen and Michael Hoveland.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The claimant worked for the employer a shop supervisor from October 1, 2002, to December 22, 2005. The employer discharged the claimant after a co-worker alleged to management in December 2005 that the claimant was involved in stealing about six or seven pieces of steel from the employer and giving it to Oil Zone, an oil-change business at which his girlfriend worked. The coworker reported that this had happened in September 2005. He reported the matter after the claimant had refused to permit him to take some steel for a workbench he wanted to build at home.

The claimant helped the owner of Oil Zone move his business material and equipment to a different location, but never gave the business any steel for the employer.

The employer discharged because it believed the claimant was involved in stealing material from the employer.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue in this case is whether the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden to prove the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The propriety of a discharge is not at issue in an unemployment insurance case. An employer may be justified in discharging an employee, but the employee's conduct may not amount to misconduct precluding the payment of unemployment compensation. The law limits disqualifying misconduct to substantial and willful wrongdoing or repeated carelessness or negligence that equals willful misconduct in culpability. Lee v. Employment Appeal Board, 616 N.W.2d 661, 665 (Iowa 2000).

The findings of fact show how I resolved the disputed factual issues in this case by carefully assessing of the credibility of the witnesses and reliability of the evidence and by applying the proper standard and burden of proof. The employer has failed in meeting its burden of proof in this case. The claimant testified credibly and denied the theft allegations. He supplied a logical motive for Hoveland to be untruthful and credibly explained why he had called Brett Regen.

DECISION:

The unemployment insurance decision dated January 17, 2006, reference 01, is affirmed. The claimant is qualified to receive unemployment insurance benefits, if he is otherwise eligible.
