Claimant: Respondent (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5-1 – Voluntary Quit
Iowa Code § 96.3-7 – Recovery of Overpayment of Benefits
871 IA Admin. Code 24(10) – Employer Participation in Fact Finding

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated June 29, 2023, (reference 01) which held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a hearing was scheduled for and held on July 26, 2023. Claimant participated personally and with witness Jeremy Gone. Employer participated by Melissa Hammond, Adam Galinski, and Jerry Favors.

ISSUES:

Whether claimant quit for good cause attributable to employer?

Whether claimant was overpaid benefits?

If claimant was overpaid benefits, should claimant repay benefits or should employer be charged due to employer's participation or lack thereof in fact finding?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on June 5, 2023. Claimant voluntarily quit on that date following overhearing of management talking poorly about her. This followed months of management allegedly not being attentive to claimant's requests and making inappropriate comments about claimant's pregnancy.

Employer hired claimant as a receptionist in July of 2021. In June of 2022 claimant moved to the position of accounts receivable officer. Soon after her move to a new position, claimant began complaining to employer about a lack of training and a lack of procedures to be followed in collections. Claimant stated that she continued these complaints on a monthly basis, but very little was ever done by employer to address her concerns.

Employer stated that they did install a NetSuite program to assist in training and set aside times for claimant and others to train using this program. Employer also stated that new people were hired to assist in billing and collections, including but not limited to a new comptroller.

Claimant additionally stated that she was harassed by employer about her pregnancy. Employer constantly asked claimant who the father was, and the CEO of the company (who did not appear as a witness) was stated by claimant as having said in response to claimant's complaints, "she wasn't complaining when she was getting the beef injection," and "she wasn't complaining when getting laid." Concerning claimant's frustrations, the CEO stated, "she's just being bitchy because that's normal during pregnancy." The CEO also backed up his position that women were too emotionally unstable to be in management by playing a Ted Talk to claimant wherein a woman argued this same position.

Employer repeatedly asked claimant questions about who was the father of her forthcoming child. Employer stated that they asked this because it was believed that claimant's supervisor was the father. Employer does not have any rules regarding office relationships, but employer believed that it was a conflict of interest for a person to be a supervisor over claimant and to also be the father of claimant's child.

The last, most recent event leading to claimant's quit occurred on June 5, 2023. On that morning claimant sent a letter to employer stating that she believed she needed additional compensation over her current pay as she was being tasked with more duties than in her job description. Although her job was accounts receivable, she was also working as a receptionist and doing additional acts outside her defined role. Employer was very upset that claimant's supervisor may have aided claimant in writing the request. During a managers' meeting held that morning, director of operations was heard by the claimant outside the room being told to, "F..k off" and saying that she was too stupid to write the email request for additional compensation on her own. Claimant stated she heard these statements, and this was supported by claimant's supervisor. The director of operations denied making the statement, and employer's other witness said he didn't remember hearing them, but did remember the yelling during the meeting. Claimant quit later that day. So did her supervisor who was supportive of claimant.

Claimant has received unemployment benefits in this matter of $2,240.00

Employer did substantially participate in fact finding in this matter by sharing information concerning the separation with the fact finder on the arranged phone call.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Iowa Code section 96.5(1) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

1. Voluntary quitting. If the individual has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the individual's employer, if so found by the department.

Iowa Code section 96.3(7)a-b, as amended in 2008, provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if un rebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the quit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871—subrule 24.32(7). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) “A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits,” pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer’s representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) “Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual,” as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)“b” as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness’s testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa Ct. App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. State v. Holtz, Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness’s appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness’s interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. State v. Holtz, Id.

In this matter, the claimant and her witness gave far more believable testimony than employer’s witnesses. The Director of Operations simply stated he didn’t say the offensive statements, but employer’s own witness stated that the D.O. did get very heated that he believed claimant’s supervisor aided claimant in requesting a higher salary. The employer’s other witness at the scene, the comptroller, simply said he didn’t remember hearing the statements. This is not a strong denial as to what was actually said. Claimant and the supervisor were able to specify what happened in much more precise details.

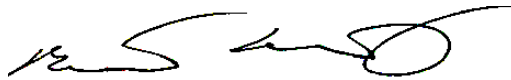

The administrative law judge holds that the evidence has established that claimant voluntarily quit for good cause attributable to employer when claimant terminated the employment relationship because she was repeatedly disrespected and belittled by multiple members of management. The actions of both the CEO and the Director of Operations towards claimant and her pregnancy are outside of the bounds of what is acceptable in a business setting.

The overpayment issue is moot.

The issue of employer participation is moot.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated June 29, 2023, (reference 01) is affirmed. Claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
