ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE
DECISION

OC: 01/02/22
Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Claimant filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated December 13, 2022, (reference 02) which held claimant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits. After due notice, a hearing was scheduled for and held on January 13, 2023. Claimant participated personally. Employer participated by hearing representative Jennifer Groenwold and witness Glynn Jones. Employer's Exhibits 1-2 were admitted into evidence.

ISSUE:

The issue in this matter is whether claimant was discharged for misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on November 22, 2022.

Employer discharged claimant on November 22, 2022 because claimant missed a mandatory overtime work date after receiving warnings for multiple attendance problems over his time of employment.

Claimant worked as a fulltime warehouse associate for employer. At the time of his hire, claimant received an employee handbook detailing, amongst other things, employer's attendance policy. Employer has a progressive disciplinary policy that can lead to termination.

Claimant received a verbal coaching, and a personal documented discussion concerning his attendance prior to his termination. After claimant received the documented discussion on October 25, 2022, he called off an absence on November 4, 2022 because of illness. Claimant's last, most recent absence that led to his termination occurred on November 22, 2022 when claimant missed a mandatory overtime day at work. Claimant was a no call / no show for that day.

Prior to claimant's last day missed, for each of the days claimant missed work, he'd called off work sick in accordance with company policy. Although he followed company procedures, he was still held in violation for not attending work, irrespective of being ill and properly calling off work.

For the last day missed on November 21, 2022 claimant stated that he remembered hearing of the mandatory day weeks beforehand, but not as the day grew near. Employer stated that the reminders were put on TV screens throughout the building, announcements were made daily, and information was put up on bulletin boards.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

A claimant is not qualified to receive unemployment insurance benefits if an employer has discharged the claimant for reasons constituting work connected misconduct. Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a. Before a claimant can be denied unemployment insurance benefits, the employer has the burden to establish the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982), Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a.

The employer bears the burden of proving that a claimant is disqualified from receiving benefits because of substantial misconduct within the meaning of Iowa Code section 96.5(2). Myers, 462

N.W.2d at 737. The propriety of a discharge is not at issue in an unemployment insurance case. An employer may be justified in discharging an employee, but the employee's conduct may not amount to misconduct precluding the payment of unemployment compensation. Because our unemployment compensation law is designed to protect workers from financial hardships when they become unemployed through no fault of their own, we construe the provisions "liberally to carry out its humane and beneficial purpose." Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 570 N.W.2d 85, 96 (Iowa 1997). "[C]ode provisions which operate to work a forfeiture of benefits are strongly construed in favor of the claimant." Diggs v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 478 N.W.2d 432, 434 (Iowa Ct. App. 1991).

The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. The lack of a current warning may detract from a finding of an intentional policy violation. Excessive absences are not misconduct unless unexcused. Absences due to properly reported illness can never constitute job misconduct since they are not volitional. The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The Iowa Supreme Court has opined that one unexcused absence is not misconduct even when it followed nine other excused absences and was in violation of a direct order. Sallis v. EAB, 437 N.W.2d 895 (Iowa 1989). Higgins v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 350 N.W.2d 187 (Iowa 1984), held that the absences must be both excessive and unexcused. The Iowa Supreme Court has held that excessive is more than one. Three incidents of tardiness or absenteeism after a warning has been held misconduct. Clark v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 317 N.W.2d 517 (Iowa Ct. App. 1982). While three is a reasonable interpretation of excessive based on current case law and Webster's Dictionary, the interpretation is best derived from the facts presented.

In this matter, the evidence fails to establish that claimant was discharged for an act of misconduct when claimant violated employer's policy concerning absenteeism. The administrative law judge finds that this case falls directly within the holding of Sallis v. EAB, 437 N.W.2d 895 (Iowa 1989) in that the claimant's last absence was certainly an unexcused absence, but did follow a number of properly reported absences for illnesses. Employer's refusal to have a system that would excuse absences for illness does not mean that their system must be adopted by the appeals bureau. The last incident, which brought about the discharge, fails to constitute misconduct because it was a single incident when the claimant was asked to work outside of his normal schedule. For that reason, overlooking that day is not, in and of itself, seen as misconduct absent other acts that would indicate misconduct. Here claimant has no other actions showing a lack of concern towards employer's interests. The administrative law judge holds that claimant was not discharged for an act of misconduct and, as such, is not disqualified for the receipt of unemployment insurance benefits.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated December 13, 2022, (reference 02) is reversed. Claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
