(Administrative Law Judge)

(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer, Cherokee Family Practice, Inc. (Family Practice), filed an appeal from a decision dated February 3, 2004, reference 02. The decision allowed benefits to the claimant, Alecia Rapp. After due notice was issued a hearing was held by telephone conference call on March 9, 2004. The claimant participated on her own behalf. The employer participated by ARNP Jan Woodall and Billing Clerk Wendy Harms .

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses and having examined all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Alecia Rapp was employed by Family Practice from April 8 until December 31, 2003. She was a full-time receptionist.

Ms. Rapp received verbal and written warnings regarding absenteeism. She had been ill a number of times, plus had some back problems. The final warning was given on December 12, 2003. On December 30, 2003, she called in absent due to illness. ARNP Jan Woodall discharged her on December 31, 2003.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue is whether the claimant is disqualified. The judge concludes she is not.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
 - a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

871 IAC 24.32(7) provides:

(7) Excessive unexcused absenteeism. Excessive unexcused absenteeism is an intentional disregard of the duty owed by the claimant to the employer and shall be considered misconduct except for illness or other reasonable grounds for which the employee was absent and that were properly reported to the employer.

The claimant had been advised her job was in jeopardy as a result of her absenteeism. However, the absences were due to illness and the employer has not established the claimant was not, in fact, ill on any of the days she was absent. A properly reported illness cannot be considered misconduct as it is not volitional. Cosper v. IDJS, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). There was no final, current act of misconduct as required by 871 IAC 24.32(8) and disqualification may not be imposed.

DECISION:

The representative's decision of February 3, 2004, reference 02, is affirmed. Alecia Rapp is qualified for benefits provided she is otherwise eligible.
