APPEAL 23A-UI-10208-PT-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

IOWA STATE ASSOC OF COUNTIES
Employer

OC: 10/01/23
Claimant: Respondent (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Overpayment of Benefits
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer Participation in Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated October 18, 2023, (reference 01) that held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits after a separation from employment. After due notice, a hearing was held on November 15, 2023. The claimant participated personally. The employer was represented by Equifax Representative Tom Kuiper and participated through Superintendent Shawn Bellis and Supervisor Bo Fox. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Whether the claimant was discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct?
Whether the claimant has been overpaid any unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, whether the repayment of those benefits to the agency can be waived.
Whether any charges to the employer's account can be waived.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant worked as a full-time assistant to the engineer for this employer from July 11, 2018, until September 25, 2023, when he was discharged. As an assistant to the engineer, claimant was responsible for surveying property lines, managing permits, helping plan and design county projects, and working with contractors and property owners to resolve disputes. Claimant's job description does not include snow removal or any other outdoor manual labor.

In the winter of 2022, the custodian who worked for the employer quit. After the custodian quit, there were no employees on staff responsible for removing snow from the courthouse grounds. Despite snow removal not being part of claimant's job description, claimant agreed to remove snow until the employer hired a new custodian. Claimant felt he was doing the employer a favor by covering responsibilities that were not part of his job. In spring 2023, the employer hired a new custodian.

In early-September 2023, the new custodian informed the employer that he did not want to be responsible for snow removal. A few days later, the employer met with claimant and told him, "I would like you to remove snow around the courthouse this winter." Claimant was already covering additional duties for two employees who had recently quit and he did not feel that he could take on any more responsibilities, so he responded, "No, I don't want to do that." Claimant also told the employer that he did not want to provide snow removal coverage for the secondary road crew. Claimant interpreted the employer's statement as a request, not as an instruction. The employer never told claimant that his refusal to perform snow removal could result in termination of his employment.

On September 25, 2023, claimant called the employer and asked, "Are you still serious about snow removal." The employer told claimant that he was serious and again asked claimant if he would remove snow around the courthouse in the winter. Claimant explained that he was already too busy and that he did not want to be responsible for snow removal. Later that day, the employer informed claimant that his employment was being terminated effective immediately due to insubordination. Prior to his termination, claimant had never received any warnings or workplace discipline for refusing to follow instructions. Claimant was not aware that his job was in jeopardy.

Claimant's administrative records indicate that he filed his original claim for benefits with an effective date of October 1, 2023. Since filing his original claim, claimant has filed weekly claims and has been paid benefits for four weeks ending November 18, 2023, for total benefits in the amount of $2,636.00. The employer participated in the fact-finding interview.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job-related misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. The lack of a current warning may detract from a finding of an intentional policy violation. Disqualification for a single misconduct incident must be a deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which employer has a right to expect. Diggs v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 478 N.W.2d 432 (Iowa Ct. App. 1991).

Insubordination is the continued failure to follow reasonable instructions. See Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Company, 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa App. 1990). An employee's failure to perform a specific task may not constitute misconduct if such failure is in good faith or for good cause. See Woods v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 327 N.W.2d 768, 771 (Iowa 1982). The administrative law judge must analyze situations involving alleged insubordination by evaluating the reasonableness of the employer's request in light of the circumstances, along with the worker's reason for non-compliance. See Endicott v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 367 N.W.2d 300 (Iowa Ct. App. 1985). Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Co., 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990); however, "Balky and argumentative" conduct is not necessarily disqualifying. City of Des Moines v. Picray, (No. 85-919, Iowa Ct. App. Filed June 25, 1986).

In this case, while claimant declined the employer's request that he perform snow removal come winter, claimant did so because snow removal was not part of his job and he was already covering additional job duties. Moreover, the record demonstrates that the employer framed the instruction as a request and never warned claimant that his refusal to follow the instruction could result in termination of his employment. An employee is entitled to fair warning that the employer will no longer tolerate certain performance and conduct. Without fair warning, an employee has no reasonable way of knowing that there are changes that need to be made in order to preserve the employment. If an employer expects an employee to conform to certain expectations or face discharge, appropriate (preferably written), detailed, and reasonable notice should be given. Since the employer had not previously warned claimant about the issue leading to the separation, it has not met the burden of proof to establish that claimant acted deliberately or with recurrent negligence in violation of company policy, procedure, or prior warning. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

Because claimant's separation was not disqualifying, the issues of overpayment, repayment, and charges are moot.

DECISION:

The October 18, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible. The issues of overpayment, repayment, and charges are moot.
