APPEAL NO. 08A-UI-01015-S2T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE
DECISION

PROGRESS INDUSTRIES
Employer

OC: 01/06/08 R: 02
Claimant: Appellant (2)

Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Helen Jackson (claimant) appealed a representative's January 25, 2008 decision (reference 01) that concluded she was not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because she was discharged from work with Progress Industries (employer) for violation of a known company rule. The claimant participated personally and through Stacy Thompson, former co-worker. The employer did not provide a telephone number where it could be reached and, therefore, did not participate in the hearing.

ISSUE:

The issue is whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and having considered all of the evidence in the record, finds that: The claimant was hired on September 10, 2002, as a full-time instructor. She helped to care for mentally and physically handicapped adults. She received a warning in 2006 for failure to properly budget a client's account. At the time of her separation from employment, she was on probation for not staying close to the client enough in the residence while the client performed household duties.

While the claimant was off work on December 5, 6, and 7, 2007, the employer instituted a procedure to account for the client's money. When the claimant returned to work, she was unaware a new procedure had been implemented. On December 9, 2007, a client's relative told the claimant that she was to call the manager to get instructions regarding the client's funds. The claimant called the manager and the manager talked the claimant through the process. The claimant followed the manager's instructions. On December 11, 2007, the manager telephoned the claimant and terminated her for failure to follow an instruction the manager did not tell her to perform on December 9, 2007. The instruction was part of the new procedure the claimant knew nothing about.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was not discharged for misconduct.

Iowa Code section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa App. 1984). The employer did not participate in the hearing and, therefore, provided no evidence of job-related misconduct. The employer did not meet its burden of proof to show misconduct. Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The representative's January 25, 2008 decision (reference 01) is reversed. The employer has not met its proof to establish job related misconduct. Benefits are allowed.
