APPEAL 24A-UI-04129-PT-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

THRIVE TOGETHER LLC
Employer

OC: 03/10/24
Claimant: Respondent (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Overpayment of Benefits
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer Participation in Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer, Thrive Together LLC, filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated April 15, 2024, (reference 05) that held the claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits after a separation from employment. After due notice, a telephone hearing was held on May 9, 2024. The claimant, Kristara Munfordditsch, did not participate. The employer was represented by UC Advantage Hearing Representative Marlene Sartin and participated through General Manager Britany Puentes. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Whether the claimant was discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct.
Whether the claimant has been overpaid any unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, whether the repayment of those benefits to the agency can be waived.
Whether any charges to the employer's account can be waived.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: The claimant worked as a part-time server for Thrive Together LLC, which operates an Applebee's franchise, from August 21, 2023, to February 15, 2024, when she was discharged. As a server, the claimant was responsible for serving food and beverages to customers, handling customer payments, and helping clean the restaurant.

The employer has a written employee manual that contains a code of conduct policy. The code of conduct policy prohibits theft of customer or company property and prohibits employees from making alterations to what customer's write on their receipts. The policy warns employees that violations of the policy could result in discipline up to and including termination of employment. The claimant received a copy of the employee manual and was familiar with the employer's work rules and policies.

On February 2, 2024, the claimant served a customer who used a gift card to pay for her meal. On her receipt, the customer wrote zero dollars for the tip, but then left a five dollar bill with the receipt as a tip. Unbeknownst to the customer, when the claimant processed the transaction, the claimant added a five dollar tip from the customer's gift card.

On February 9, 2024, the customer returned to the restaurant and had another meal. The customer used the same gift card to pay for the second meal that she had used to pay on February 2, 2024. When the server brought the customer her receipt, the customer discovered that there were five dollars missing from her gift card. The customer became very upset, demanded to speak to the general manager, and then pointed to the claimant and began shouting that the claimant had stolen her money.

The customer gave the general manager her receipt from February 2, 2024, reflecting zero dollars in tip from the gift card. The general manager then reviewed the February 2 transaction in the employer's system, which showed a five dollar tip was added to the gift card against the customer's wishes. This resulted in the claimant being paid five more dollars than she should have been paid. Over the next several days, the general manager reviewed all of the claimant's transactions from the previous two weeks and discovered two other transactions where the tip written on the receipt did not match the tip recorded in the employer's system. Both transactions resulted in the claimant being paid more than the tip written on the customer's receipt.

On February 15, 2024, the employer called the claimant into a meeting and confronted her with the results of the investigation. When shown the inconsistencies between the transactions recorded in the employer's system and the amounts written on the customers' receipts, the claimant responded, "Okay." When the employer asked if she had any explanation for the inconsistencies, the claimant did not respond. At the end of the meeting, the employer informed the claimant that her employment was being terminated effective immediately due to theft in violation of the employer's code of conduct policy.

The claimant's administrative records indicate that the claimant filed her original claim for benefits with an effective date of March 10, 2024. The claimant has filed weekly claims for benefits for four weeks between March 10 and April 6, 2024, and has received total unemployment insurance benefits of $436.00. The employer participated in fact-finding through its detailed written statement submitted through SIDES.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment due to disqualifying, job-related misconduct.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)d(2) and (14) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

(2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.

(13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating the claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The law limits disqualifying misconduct to substantial and willful wrongdoing or repeated carelessness or negligence that equals willful misconduct in culpability. Lee v. Employment Appeal Bd., 616 N.W.2d 661 (Iowa 2000).

The employer has presented substantial and credible evidence that on three separate occasions during a two-week period the claimant altered customers' transactions to receive greater tips than the customers actually left. The claimant's actions were a theft of customer property. Theft is generally disqualifying misconduct. Ringland Johnson, Inc. v. Hunecke, 585 N.W.2d 269, 272 (Iowa 1998). In Ringland, the Court found a single attempted theft to be misconduct as a matter of law. In this case, the claimant deliberately disregarded the employer's interest. The claimant engaged in disqualifying misconduct even without prior warning. Benefits are denied.

The next issues to be determined are whether the claimant has been overpaid benefits, whether the claimant must repay those benefits, and whether the employer's account will be charged. For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes:

Iowa Code section 96.3(7)a, b, as amended in 2008, provides:

Payment – determination – duration – child support intercept.

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if unrebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the quit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871—subrule 24.32(7). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) "A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits," pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer's representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) "Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual," as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)"b" as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant's employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The employer will not be charged for benefits if it is determined that they did participate in the fact-finding interview. Iowa Code § 96.3(7), Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10.

Because the claimant's separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which the claimant was not entitled. The administrative law judge concludes that the claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $436.00 for the four weeks between March 10 and April 6, 2024. There is no evidence that the claimant received these benefits due to fraud or willful misrepresentation. Because the employer did participate in fact-finding, the claimant is obligated to repay to the agency the benefits she received and the employer's account shall not be charged.

DECISION:

The April 15, 2024, (reference 05) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. The claimant was discharged for substantial job-related misconduct. Unemployment insurance benefits funded by the State of Iowa are denied until the claimant has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times her weekly benefit amount after the February 15, 2024, separation date, and provided she is otherwise eligible.

The claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $436.00 and is obligated to repay the agency those benefits. The employer did participate in fact-finding and its account shall not be charged.
