ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

NPC INTERNATIONAL INC PIZZA HUT

Employer

OC: 12/04/11

Claimant: Respondent (2-R)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Employer filed an appeal from the January 10, 2012 (reference 01) decision that allowed benefits. After due notice was issued, a hearing was held by telephone conference call on February 17, 2012. Claimant participated. Employer participated through area manager Jonathan (Charlie) Heyer, manager Kris Harthoorn, and cook Brad Boyd.

ISSUE:

Did employer discharge claimant for reasons related to job misconduct sufficient to warrant a denial of benefits and if so, was she overpaid benefits as a result?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant was employed part-time as a cook and was separated from employment on December 9, 2011. On that date she was scheduled to work from 2:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Harthoorn drove her to work without incident. After Boyd arrived claimant became agitated about a disagreement when he wanted to make the pizza for his grandfather. Harthoorn told her he would talk to Boyd and it was a minor problem. At about 5:30 p.m. Boyd notified Harthoorn that claimant was leaving. Harthoorn caught her as she was going out the back door and she said she was leaving because she was tired of the situation. Harthoorn told her she could go home and calm down if she wanted to but reminded her that if she left she would be terminated. She said nothing and left. Harthoorn called her about an hour later and told her to call Heyer. She called Heyer and he fired her because of the second incident and not to return. On November 17, 2011 claimant was scheduled to work the same shift while a visiting manager was present. Claimant argued with the visiting manager about assigned duties. She called Harthoorn and he could not convince her not to leave and she left before her shift ended. On November 18 Harthoorn and Heyer warned her that if she walked out before the end of her shift again she would be fired.

Claimant received unemployment benefits after the separation on a claim with an effective date of December 4, 2011.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct.

Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

- 2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
- a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

- (1) Definition.
- a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Company, 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa App. 1990). The employer has the right to allocate its personnel in accordance with its needs and available resources. Although claimant argued that she was told to leave, employer has presented substantial and credible evidence that on both occasions claimant became upset about minor personnel allocation issues and left. Since she had been warned she would be fired if she did so again, the second incident was deliberate, disqualifying misconduct. Benefits are denied.

lowa Code § 96.3-7, as amended in 2008, provides:

- 7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.
- a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

- b. (1) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment. The employer shall not be charged with the benefits.
- (2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Because claimant's separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which claimant was not entitled. The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant's employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The employer will not be charged for benefits whether or not the overpayment is recovered. Iowa Code § 96.3(7). In this case, claimant has received benefits but was not eligible for those benefits.

DECISION:

The January 10, 2012 (reference 01) decision is reversed. Claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as she has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times her weekly benefit amount, provided she is otherwise eligible.
