IN THE IOWA ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS DIVISION UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE APPEALS BUREAU

CLAIMANT APPEAL 23A-UI-06720-AR-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE PUBLIC DECISION

EMPLOYER

OC: 06/11/23

Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On July 5, 2023, the claimant filed an appeal from the June 29, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based on the determination that claimant was discharged for disqualifying misconduct. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on August 31, 2023. Claimant participated, and was represented by non-attorney representative. Employer participated through its hearing representative, who did not testify, with testifying witness. Mandarin Chinese language interpretation services were provided by CTS Language Link. Prior to the hearing, the administrative law judge granted claimant's request for subpoena duces tecum, to which the employer responded. No exhibits were admitted.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for employer on October 31, 2022. Claimant last worked as a full-time associate teacher. Claimant was separated from employment on June 8, 2023, when they were discharged.

On May 18, 2023, while on the playground, a child was injured when the child scraped their knee. Claimant responded by asking the child and the children in the area what had happened. Claimant sought advice regarding what to do about the child's injury from the lead teacher. The lead teacher said claimant should simply put a bandage on the child's knee. The child initially refused the bandage, but ultimately claimant put the bandage on the child's knee. At one point claimant told the child to hold still and claimant grasped the child's leg in order to apply the bandage. Claimant denies that they inflicted any additional injury on the child.

Later, someone at the employer observed what appeared to be a fingernail mark near the injury site on the child. Claimant was called to provide a written statement regarding what had occurred that day. The employer also took statements from the other teachers in the classroom who reported that the child said claimant had scratched them. The employer suspended claimant pending an investigation into the incident.

Effective June 8, 2023, the employer concluded that claimant's actions violated its positive guidance policy and physical interactions between students and teachers policy. The employer discharged claimant from employment on June 8, 2023.

Claimant had received one previous disciplinary warning for violation of the positive guidance policy. A counseling was issued on January 6, 2023, after an incident that occurred on January 4, 2023, in which it was alleged that claimant grasped a young child's shoulders and gently shook them. Claimant admits to grasping the child's shoulder because the child was attempting to hit claimant. Claimant denies shaking the child. The warning stated that future violations of the positive guidance policy would result in progressive discipline, up to and including discharge.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

- 2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
- a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

- d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:
- (1) Material falsification of the individual's employment application.
- (2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.
- (3) Intentional damage of an employer's property.

- (4) Consumption of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in a manner not directed by the manufacturer, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies.
- (5) Reporting to work under the influence of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in an off-label manner, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies, unless the individual is compelled to work by the employer outside of scheduled or on-call working hours.
- (6) Conduct that substantially and unjustifiably endangers the personal safety of coworkers or the general public.
- (7) Incarceration for an act for which one could reasonably expect to be incarcerated that results in missing work.
- (8) Incarceration as a result of a misdemeanor or felony conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction.
- (9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.
- (10) Falsification of any work-related report, task, or job that could expose the employer or coworkers to legal liability or sanction for violation of health or safety laws.
- (11) Failure to maintain any license, registration, or certification that is reasonably required by the employer or by law, or that is a functional requirement to perform the individual's regular job duties, unless the failure is not within the control of the individual.
- (12) Conduct that is libelous or slanderous toward an employer or an employee of the employer if such conduct is not protected under state or federal law.
- (13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.
- (14) Intentional misrepresentation of time worked or work carried out that results in the individual receiving unearned wages or unearned benefits.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee.

The administrative law judge is not convinced that the claimant injured the child as alleged. Even if claimant was the cause of additional injury to the child, there is no evidence in the record indicating that the injury was the result of deliberate acts by claimant, or the result of repeated negligence after previous warnings. At worst, if the child was injured, the injury was the result of an isolated incident resulting in mistake. The question is not whether the employer made the correct decision in discharging claimant, but whether claimant is disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits due to their own actions. The administrative law judge concludes the employer has not met its burden of establishing that the claimant's actions rose to the level of misconduct such that they should be disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

DECISION:

The June 29, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is REVERSED. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.
