ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

LOWE'S HOME CENTERS LLC Employer

> OC: 10/08/23 Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Claimant filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated November 9, 2023, (reference 01) that held claimant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits after a separation from employment. After due notice, a telephone hearing was held on December 6, 2023. The claimant participated personally. The employer did not participate. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUE:

Whether the claimant was discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant worked as a full-time department manager for Lowe's Home Centers LLC from February 9, 2022, until September 5, 2023, when he was discharged. As a department manager, claimant was responsible for opening and closing the store, supervising and directing employees, and overseeing the outside lawn and garden department. The employer has an employee manual containing its work rules and policies. Claimant received a copy of the employee manual and was familiar with the employer's work rules.

On September 4, 2023, the employer received a large shipment, approximately 40 bags, of landscaping rocks, which needed to be stocked in the outside lawn and garden department. Claimant was stressed because the department was understaffed and he was covering additional job duties due to the staffing shortage. For this reason, when the shipment of landscaping rocks arrived, claimant hastily began unloading and stocking the bags of rocks. As he was doing so, one of the bags of rocks broke open and rocks scattered around the department. Claimant was upset, but he did not yell, curse, or otherwise react in an inappropriate manner. Rather, claimant retrieved a broom, cleaned up the rocks, and finished stocking the products.

Later that day, the store manager called claimant into a meeting and asked him about the bag of rocks that had broken open. Claimant explained that he had been in a hurry because he had a long list of jobs that needed to get done and that he had accidently broken the bag open while stocking the products. Claimant then returned to work and completed his assigned duties for the day. The next day, the store manager called claimant into a meeting an informed claimant that his employment was being terminated effective immediately due to unprofessional conduct.

The employer never provided claimant a specific reason for his termination and never told claimant that he violated a work rule or policy. Prior to claimant's termination, he had never received any warnings or workplace discipline concerning his professionalism or behavior in the workplace, claimant felt he was performing his job to the best of his ability, and he did not think that his job was in jeopardy.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job-related misconduct. Cosper v. lowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (lowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. lowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (lowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. lowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (lowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (lowa Ct. App. 1984). The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. The lack of a current warning may detract from a finding of an intentional policy violation.

When based on carelessness, the carelessness must actually indicate a "wrongful intent" to be disqualifying in nature. Id. Negligence does not constitute misconduct unless recurrent in nature; a single act is not disqualifying unless indicative of a deliberate disregard of the employer's interests. Henry v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 391 N.W.2d 731 (Iowa Ct. App. 1986). Poor work performance is not misconduct in the absence of evidence of intent. Miller v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 423 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Co., 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990); however, "Balky and argumentative" conduct is not necessarily disqualifying. City of Des Moines v. Picray, (No. 85-919, Iowa Ct. App. Filed June 25, 1986).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation.

In this case, claimant was discharged for allegedly acting inappropriately or unprofessionally while stocking bags of landscaping rocks. Claimant has consistently and credibly denied that he intentionally broke one of the bags open and he denies yelling, cursing, or reacting inappropriately when it did so. The employer did not participate in the hearing and there is no evidence in the record demonstrating that claimant knowingly violated a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of the employer. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-

24.32(4). Absent any evidence corroborating the employer's allegation, the administrative law judge concludes the employer has not met the burden of proof to establish claimant was discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct.

Moreover, as the employer had not previously warned claimant about the issue leading to the separation, it has not met the burden of proof to establish that claimant acted deliberately or with recurrent negligence in violation of company policy, procedure, or prior warning. An employee is entitled to fair warning that the employer will no longer tolerate certain performance and conduct. Without fair warning, an employee has no reasonable way of knowing that there are changes that need be made in order to preserve the employment. If an employer expects an employee to conform to certain expectations or face discharge, appropriate (preferably written), detailed, and reasonable notice should be given. As such, benefits are allowed provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated November 9, 2023 (reference 01) is reversed. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
