UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE APPEALS BUREAU

MACKENZIE E MOSER Claimant AFFINITY CREDIT UNION Employer	APPEAL 24A-UI-04586-LJ-T ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION OC: 04/21/24 Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge from Employment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On May 12, 2024, claimant Mackenzie E. Moser filed an appeal from the May 8, 2024 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits, determining claimant was discharged for violating a known company rule. The Unemployment Insurance Appeals Bureau mailed notice of the hearing on May 15, 2024. Administrative Law Judge Elizabeth A. Johnson held a telephonic hearing at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, May 29, 2024. Claimant Mackenzie E. Moser personally participated. Employer Affinity Credit Union participated through Carmen Wooley, CFO. Employer's Exhibits 1 through 8 were received and admitted into the record.

ISSUE:

Whether claimant was discharged from employment for disqualifying, job-related misconduct.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant Mackenzie E. Moser began working for Affinity Credit Union on September 28, 2020. She worked in a full-time position as a financial services officer. Claimant's employment ended on April 22, 2024, when the employer discharged her for violating the anti-harassment policy.

On April 12, 2024, claimant was speaking with two coworkers about the employer's decision to begin strictly enforcing its dress code. Claimant was upset about this, particularly about the provision applying to leggings. She made an ageist and vulgar comment about her branch manager, Michelle. This comment indicated Michelle was enforcing the dress code due to jealousy and insecurity. Both of the coworkers that claimant made the comment to promptly reported it to Chantel Fox, Vice President.

Once Fox received these reports, the employer commenced an investigation by reviewing camera footage of the incident and collecting written employee statements. Based on this investigation, the employer concluded claimant had made the comment. Claimant made other comments in the days before and after April 12 as well that concerned the employer. On April 11, claimant said she still planned to wear leggings the following day. When her coworker warned her that she could get written up or discharged, claimant replied, "I don't give a fuck." The employer then determined the comment violated its Anti-Harassment policy in its Employee

Handbook. (Exhibit 7, pages 22-23) Claimant had received one prior warning in 2022; this warning related to gossiping in the workplace and having a poor attitude at work.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d) provide:

> An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:
> 2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
> a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible…
> d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:
> (1) Material falsification of the individual's employment application.
> (2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.
> (3) Intentional damage of an employer's property.
> (4) Consumption of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in a manner not directed by the manufacturer, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies.
> (5) Reporting to work under the influence of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in an off-label manner, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies, unless the individual is compelled to work by the employer outside of scheduled or on-call working hours.
> (6) Conduct that substantially and unjustifiably endangers the personal safety of coworkers or the general public.

(7) Incarceration for an act for which one could reasonably expect to be incarcerated that results in missing work.

(8) Incarceration as a result of a misdemeanor or felony conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction.

(9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.

(10) Falsification of any work-related report, task, or job that could expose the employer or coworkers to legal liability or sanction for violation of health or safety laws.

(11) Failure to maintain any license, registration, or certification that is reasonably required by the employer or by law, or that is a functional requirement to perform the individual's regular job duties, unless the failure is not within the control of the individual.

(12) Conduct that is libelous or slanderous toward an employer or an employee of the employer if such conduct is not protected under state or federal law.

(13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.

(14) Intentional misrepresentation of time worked or work carried out that results in the individual receiving unearned wages or unearned benefits.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee.

Every employer is entitled to expect civility and decency from its employees, and an employee's "use of profanity or offensive language in a confrontational, disrespectful, or name-calling context may be recognized as misconduct." Henecke v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 533 N.W.2d 573, 576 (Iowa App. 1995) (internal citation omitted). However, the use of profanity or offensive language is not automatically disqualifying for unemployment insurance benefits purposes. "The use of profanity or offensive language in a confrontational, disrespectful, or name-calling context, may be recognized as misconduct, even in the case of isolated incidents or situations in which the target of abusive name-calling is not present when the vulgar statements are initially made. The question of whether the use of improper language in the workplace is misconduct is nearly always a fact question. It must be considered with other relevant factors, including the context in which it is said, and the general work environment." Myers v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 462 N.W.2d 734 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990). Vulgar language in front of customers can constitute misconduct, Zeches v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 333 N.W.2d 735, 736 (Iowa Ct. App. 1983), as well as vulgarities accompanied with a refusal to obey supervisors. Warrell v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 356 N.W.2d 587, 589 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

The employer discharged claimant after learning that she made a vulgar and disrespectful comment about her branch manager to multiple coworkers. This comment was il-advised and unprofessional. However, claimant made this comment with no intent for the branch manager to hear it or learn about it. Claimant's comment was not so egregious that her behavior could not be redeemed. Assuming all the facts as the employer presented them, claimant's objectionable behavior was all in response to the employer's decision to strictly enforce the dress code. Given a warning and the opportunity to calm down and deescalate, claimant could have improved. The employer, however, did not give her that opportunity. The employer has not established claimant was discharged for any disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The May 8, 2024 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. The employer discharged claimant from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided she is otherwise eligible. Any benefits claimed and withheld on this basis shall be paid.
