APPEAL 24A-UI-02870-S2-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

OC: 02/11/24
Claimant: Appellant (4)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quit
Iowa Code § 96.6(2) – Timeliness of Appeal

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On March 12, 2024, the claimant filed an appeal from the March 1, 2024, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based upon a determination that claimant voluntarily quit his employment for personal reasons. After due notice was issued, an in-person hearing was scheduled for April 2, 2024. Prior to the hearing date, claimant requested a postponement to allow time for his attorney to prepare and requested a telephone hearing. The requests were granted. The parties were properly notified of the new hearing date. A telephone hearing was held on May 6, 2024. Claimant Girmay Gegreamlak participated and testified through a Tigrinya interpreter and was represented by attorney Shane Michael. Employer Tyson Fresh Meats, Inc. did not participate. Department's Exhibits D-1 and D-2 were received.

ISSUES:

Is the claimant's appeal timely?
Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

As claimant was the only witness, the administrative law judge makes the following findings of fact based solely upon claimant's testimony: Claimant was employed full time as a production worker from October 2, 2017, until November 15, 2023, when he resigned.

On June 30, 2023, claimant suffered a work-related injury to his right leg. When he returned to work, employer accommodated him by providing light-duty work. However, employer eventually required him to return to work in a position that aggravated his leg and caused his condition to worsen. He asked employer to allow him to see the doctor to address his pain so he could return to work, but employer refused and told claimant that he had to return to work. Claimant quit his position on November 15, 2023 because employer would not accommodate his request to see the doctor.

Claimant's saw his medical provider shortly after his separation. The medical provider told claimant he is unable to work due to his leg injury.

A disqualification decision was mailed to claimant's last known address of record on March 1, 2024. The first sentence of the decision states, "If this decision denies benefits and is not reversed on appeal, it may result in an overpayment which you will be required to repay." The decision contained a warning that an appeal must be postmarked or received by the Appeals Bureau by March 11, 2024. The appeal was not filed until March 12, 2024, which is after the date noticed on the disqualification decision. Claimant received the decision in the mail. English is not claimant's first language. He wished to obtain the services of an attorney in order to navigate the appeal process because he is not fluent in English; however, because of the language barrier, it took some time. When claimant filed his appeal on March 12, 2024, with the help of the IowaWorks office, he missed the deadline by one day.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

Timeliness

The first issue is whether claimant's appeal is timely. For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes it is.

2. Initial determination. A representative designated by the director shall promptly notify all interested parties to the claim of its filing, and the parties have ten days from the date of mailing the notice of the filing of the claim by ordinary mail to the last known address to protest payment of benefits to the claimant. The representative shall promptly examine the claim and any protest, take the initiative to ascertain relevant information concerning the claim, and, on the basis of the facts found by the representative, shall determine whether or not the claim is valid, the week with respect to which benefits shall commence, the weekly benefit amount payable and its maximum duration, and whether any disqualification shall be imposed. The claimant has the burden of proving that the claimant meets the basic eligibility conditions of section 96.4. The employer has the burden of proving that the claimant is disqualified for benefits pursuant to section 96.5, except as provided by this subsection. The claimant has the initial burden to produce evidence showing that the claimant is not disqualified for benefits in cases involving section 96.5, subsection 10, and has the burden of proving that a voluntary quit pursuant to section 96.5, subsection 1, was for good cause attributable to the employer and that the claimant is not disqualified for benefits in cases involving section 96.5, subsection 1, paragraphs "a" through "h". Unless the claimant or other interested party, after notification or within ten calendar days after notification was mailed to the claimant's last known address, files an appeal from the decision, the decision is final and benefits shall be paid or denied in accordance with the decision. If an administrative law judge affirms a decision of the representative, or the appeal board affirms a decision of the administrative law judge allowing benefits, the benefits shall be paid regardless of any appeal which is thereafter taken, but if the decision is finally reversed, no employer's account shall be charged with benefits so paid and this relief from charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5.

The ten calendar days for appeal begins running on the mailing date. The "decision date" found in the upper right-hand portion of the representative's decision, unless otherwise corrected immediately below that entry, is presumptive evidence of the date of mailing. Gaskins v. Unempl. Comp. Bd. of Rev., 429 A.2d 138 (Pa. Comm. 1981); Johnson v. Bd. of Adjustment, 239 N.W.2d 873, 92 A.L.R.3d 304 (Iowa 1976).

The record in this case shows that more than ten calendar days elapsed between the mailing date and the date this appeal was filed. The Iowa Supreme Court has declared that there is a mandatory duty to file appeals from representatives' decisions within the time allotted by statute, and that the administrative law judge has no authority to change the decision of a representative if a timely appeal is not filed. Franklin v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 277 N.W.2d 877, 881 (Iowa 1979). Compliance with appeal notice provisions is jurisdictional unless the facts of a case show that the notice was invalid. Beardslee v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 276 N.W.2d 373, 377 (Iowa 1979); see also In re Appeal of Elliott, 319 N.W.2d 244, 247 (Iowa 1982). The question in this case thus becomes whether the appellant was deprived of a reasonable opportunity to assert an appeal in a timely fashion. Hendren v. Iowa Emp't Sec. Comm'n, 217 N.W.2d 255 (Iowa 1974); Smith v. Iowa Emp't Sec. Comm'n, 212 N.W.2d 471, 472 (Iowa 1973).

In this case, it is clear from the evidence in this record that the claimant is not fluent in written or spoken English. The administrative law judge concludes that the claimant attempted to obtain legal representation so that he could proceed with filing an appeal to assist him in understanding the process. Therefore, the appeal shall be accepted as timely.

Separation

The next issue is whether claimant voluntarily quit with good cause attributable to employer. For the following reasons, the administrative law judge concludes he did.

Iowa Code section 96.5(1) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

1. Voluntary quitting. If the individual has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the individual's employer, if so found by the department.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.26(6)b provides:

Voluntary quit with good cause attributable to the employer and separations not considered to be voluntary quits. The following are reasons for a claimant leaving employment with good cause attributable to the employer:

(6) Separation because of illness, injury, or pregnancy.

b. Employment related separation. The claimant was compelled to leave employment because of an illness, injury, or allergy condition that was attributable to the employment. Factors and circumstances directly connected with the employment which caused or aggravated the illness, injury, allergy, or disease to the employee which made it impossible for the employee to continue in employment because of serious danger to the employee's health may be held to be an involuntary termination of employment and constitute good cause attributable to the employer. The claimant will be eligible for benefits if compelled to leave employment as a result of an injury suffered on the job.

In order to be eligible under this paragraph "b" an individual must present competent evidence showing adequate health reasons to justify termination; before quitting have informed the employer of the work-related health problem and inform the employer that the individual intends to quit unless the problem is corrected or the individual is reasonably accommodated. Reasonable accommodation includes other comparable work which is not injurious to the claimant's health and for which the claimant must remain available.

An individual who voluntarily leaves their employment due to an alleged work-related illness or injury must first give notice to the employer of the anticipated reasons for quitting in order to give the employer an opportunity to remedy the situation or offer an accommodation. Suluki v. Employment Appeal Board, 503 N.W.2d 402 (Iowa 1993). An employee who receives a reasonable expectation of assistance from the employer after complaining about working conditions must complain further if conditions persist in order to preserve eligibility for benefits. Polley v. Gopher Bearing Company, 478 N.W.2d 775 (Minn. App. 1991).

Here, claimant requested he be allowed to return to the doctor because his work-related injury was preventing him from performing his job duties. He was not allowed to seek medical attention. Employer refused to accommodate claimant upon his return to work, so he resigned. Claimant has met his burden of proof establishing that his separation was an involuntary termination of employment and constitutes good cause attributable to the employer under Iowa Admin. Code 871-24.26(6)b.

Ability to and Availability for Work

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge further concludes that the claimant is not able to work and available for work effective February 11, 2024.

Iowa Code section 96.4(3) provides:

An unemployed individual shall be eligible to receive benefits with respect to any week only if the department finds that:

3. The individual is able to work, is available for work, and is earnestly and actively seeking work. This subsection is waived if the individual is deemed partially unemployed, while employed at the individual's regular job, as defined in section 96.19, subsection 38, paragraph "b", unnumbered paragraph (1), or temporarily unemployed as defined in section 96.19, subsection 38, paragraph "c". The work search requirements of this subsection and the disqualification requirement for failure to apply for, or to accept suitable work of section 96.5, subsection 3 are waived if the individual is not disqualified for benefits under section 96.5, subsection 1, paragraph "h".

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.22(1)a provides:

Benefits eligibility conditions. For an individual to be eligible to receive benefits the department must find that the individual is able to work, available for work, and earnestly and actively seeking work. The individual bears the burden of establishing that the individual is able to work, available for work, and earnestly and actively seeking work.

(1) Able to work. An individual must be physically and mentally able to work in some gainful employment, not necessarily in the individual's customary occupation, but which is engaged in by others as a means of livelihood.

a. Illness, injury or pregnancy. Each case is decided upon an individual basis, recognizing that various work opportunities present different physical requirements. A statement from a medical practitioner is considered prima facie evidence of the physical ability of the individual to perform the work required. A pregnant individual must meet the same criteria for determining ableness as do all other individuals.

b. Interpretation of ability to work. The law provides that an individual must be able to work to be eligible for benefits. This means that the individual must be physically able to work, not necessarily in the individual's customary occupation, but able to work in some reasonably suitable, comparable, gainful, full-time endeavor, other than self-employment, which is generally available in the labor market in which the individual resides.

(2) Available for work. The availability requirement is satisfied when an individual is willing, able, and ready to accept suitable work which the individual does not have good cause to refuse, that is, the individual is genuinely attached to the labor market. Since, under unemployment insurance laws, it is the availability of an individual that is required to be tested, the labor market must be described in terms of the individual. A labor market for an individual means a market for the type of service which the individual offers in the geographical area in which the individual offers the service. Market in that sense does not mean that job vacancies must exist; the purpose of unemployment insurance is to compensate for lack of job vacancies. It means only that the type of services which an individual is offering is generally performed in the geographical area in which the individual is offering the services.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.23(35) provides:

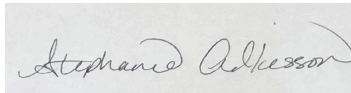

Availability disqualifications. The following are reasons for a claimant being disqualified for being unavailable for work.

(35) Where the claimant is not able to work and is under the care of a medical practitioner and has not been released as being able to work.

An individual claiming benefits has the burden to prove that they are able to work, available for work, and earnestly and actively seeking work. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.22. The claimant is under a doctor's care and has not been released to return to work. Therefore, he cannot establish that he is available to work. Accordingly, the claimant is not eligible for unemployment insurance benefits effective February 11, 2024.

DECISION:

The appeal is timely. The March 1, 2024, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is modified in favor of the appellant. While the claimant is not disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits based on his separation from employment, the claimant is not available for work effective February 11, 2024. Benefits are denied until such time as the claimant is available to work, provided he is otherwise eligible.
