WALMART INC

APPEAL 22A-UI-13637-JD-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE
DECISION

OC: 08/22/21
Claimant: Respondent (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code §96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer/Representative Participation in Fact-Finding

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On June 6, 2022, the employer filed an appeal from the May 27, 2022, (reference 03) unemployment insurance decision that allowed benefits. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on July 21, 2022. Claimant Mechelle Lewis did not participate. Employer participated through Jennifer Carpenter, Pharmacy Manager. Employer's exhibit 1-6 were admitted. Official notice was taken of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged from employment for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

Has the claimant been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?

Can charges to the employer's account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for employer on January 19, 2001. Claimant last worked as a full-time pharmacy tech. Claimant was separated from employment on May 4, 2022, when she was discharged for violating the company's sexual harassment policy. On April 9, 2022, the claimant was interacting with a pharmacy customer who had a large key chain in the shape of a man's penis. The claimant and the customer engaged in some friendly conversation regarding this key chain. The customer showed the key chain to the claimant who showed it to two co-workers. The employer initiated an investigation approximately a week later and then terminated the claimant on May 3, 2022. The employer testified that the claimant's interactions with the customer were not an issue but when the claimant showed the customer's key chain to her co-workers that violated the employer's sexual harassment policy and that eventually led to her termination.

The employer did not fully participate in the fact-finding interview. There was no individual available at fact finding to provide first hand rebuttable information to the claimant's statements.

The claimant's administrative record reflects that she has not been paid any unemployment benefits since filing or her original claim date of August 22, 2021.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). Misconduct must be "substantial" to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation. A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy.

A lapse of 11 days from the final act until discharge when claimant was notified on the fourth day that his conduct was grounds for dismissal did not make the final act a "past act." Where an employer gives seven days' notice to the employee that it will consider discharging him, the date of that notice is used to measure whether the act complained of is current. Greene v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 426 N.W.2d 659 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). An unpublished decision held informally that two calendar weeks or up to ten work days from the final incident to the discharge may be considered a current act. Milligan v. Emp't Appeal Bd., No. 10-2098 (Iowa Ct. App. filed June 15, 2011).

The employer waited almost a week before initiating their investigation into the claimant's interaction with the offending key-chain and then allowing approximately one month to elapse before terminating the claimant does not constitute a current act. Furthermore, the incident itself would not disqualify the claimant from benefits.

The employer produced no one with first hand knowledge of the incident and testified that the interaction between the claimant and customer was not at issue. The claimant may have used bad judgement in showing the key chain to her co-workers but it doesn't appear that she was motivated by any ill will or wanton disregard for her employer's interest. The claimant had worked for the employer for twenty-two years and her conduct and interaction with her co-worker's by showing them the customer's key chain was not disqualifying. Benefits are allowed.

The issue of overpayment and chargeability are moot due to the claimant's discharge was found to not be disqualifying.

DECISION:

The May 27, 2022, (reference 03) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed provided she is otherwise eligible.
