Iowa Code § 96.5(2)(a)(d) – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On August 29, 2022, the claimant filed an appeal from the August 26, 2022, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based on a determination that the claimant was discharged due to dishonesty in connection with his employment. The parties were properly notified about the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on October 14, 2022. Claimant Drew Hieber participated along with counsel T. Cody Farrens. Employer participated through Matt Flattery, Human Resources. Employer's Exhibit 1-5 were admitted. Official notice was taken of the administrative record.

ISSUE:

Was the claimant discharged from employment for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for employer on October 4, 2020. Claimant last worked as a full-time maintenance worker. Claimant was separated from employment on July 29, 2022, when he was discharged for lying to his employer regarding his whereabouts and work allegedly accomplished the previous day. On July 27, 2022, the employer directed the claimant to drive to Canton and Dell Rapids South Dakota to clean and replace the heating and cooling filters at two of the employer's restaurants. The claimant left for his assignment mid morning in his personal vehicle rather than a company vehicle that were equipped with GPS tracking systems. Around 2:00 p.m. on that same afternoon the employer attempted to determine the claimant's location in order to monitor his work progress. The employer contacted the manager of each of the stores where the claimant was supposed to be working and both managers stated that they had not seen the claimant on that date. The employer directed each manager to look in their dumpsters on property to determine if there were any old filters that had been thrown away. Both managers indicated that no filters had been deposited in either of their respective dumpsters. The employer also reviewed surveillance camera's located on both properties at approximately 3:00 p.m. on July 27, 2022 and the claimant was not visible on camera at either property.

The employer spoke with the claimant the following day and asked him if he had replaced the filters and completed the tasks that he was directed to do the previous day. The claimant stated that he had driven to both locations and cleaned and replaced the filters and thrown the old filters away in each of the dumpsters on both properties. The claimant was discharged for lying to his employer regarding his whereabouts and work accomplished the previous day.

The claimant was given a final written warning on April 15, 2022, for failure to properly account for his time and failure to follow directions.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2) d provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

- (1) Material falsification of the individual's employment application.
- (2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.
- (3) Intentional damage of an employer's property.

(4) Consumption of alcohol, illegal or non prescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in a manner not directed by the manufacturer or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies.

(5) Reporting to work under the influence of alcohol, illegal or non prescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in an off-label manner, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies, unless the individual is compelled to work by the employer outside of scheduled or on-call working hours.

(6) Conduct that substantially and unjustifiably endangers the personal safety of coworkers or the general public.

(7) Incarceration for an act for which one could reasonably expect to be incarcerated that result in missing work.

(8) Incarceration as a result of a misdemeanor or felony conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction.

(9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.

(10) Falsification of any work-related report, task, or job that could expose the employer or coworkers to legal liability or sanction for violation of health or safety laws.

(11) Failure to maintain any licenses, registration, or certification that is reasonably required by the employer or by law, or that is a functional requirement to perform the individual's regular job duties, unless the failure is not within the control of the individual.

(12) Conduct that is libelous or slanderous toward an employer or an employee of the employer if such conduct is not protected under state or federal law.

(13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.

(14) Intentional misrepresentation of time worked or work carried out that results in the individual receiving unearned wages or unearned benefits.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). Misconduct must be "substantial" to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

"Misconduct serious enough to warrant the discharge of an employee is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of benefits." Lee v. Employment Appeal Bd., 616 N.W.2d 661, 665 (Iowa 2000).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation. A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy.

The decision in this case rests, at least in part, on the credibility of the witnesses. It is the duty of the administrative law judge as the trier of fact in this case, to determine the credibility of witnesses, weigh the evidence and decide the facts in issue. Arndt v. City of LeClaire, 728 N.W.2d 389, 394-395 (Iowa 2007). The administrative law judge may believe all, part or none of any witness's testimony. State v. Holtz, 548 N.W.2d 162, 163 (Iowa App. 1996). In assessing the credibility of witnesses, the administrative law judge should consider the evidence using his or her own observations, common sense and experience. Id. In determining the facts, and deciding what testimony to believe, the fact finder may consider the following factors: whether the testimony is reasonable and consistent with other believable evidence; whether a witness has made inconsistent statements; the witness's appearance, conduct, age, intelligence, memory and knowledge of the facts; and the witness's interest in the trial, their motive, candor, bias and prejudice. Id.

After assessing the credibility of the witnesses who testified during the hearing, reviewing the exhibits submitted by the parties, considering the applicable factors listed above, and using his own common sense and experience, the administrative law judge finds the employer's version of events to be more credible than the claimant's recollection of those events.

The claimant intentionally misrepresented time worked and work carried out resulting in his earning unearned wages and benefits. The claimant testified that he drove to each location, remained at each location for approximately two hours and did not encounter a manager or other employee during the course of his work. Further the claimant stated that the filters had already been changed a few weeks prior to July 27, 2022, but failed to mention that fact to his employer prior to his departure that day in his personal truck that was not equipped with GPS. The claimant further testified that at 3:00 p.m. when the employer reviewed real time camera surveillance at each location that he was already on his way back to Sioux City, Iowa, which was approximately 90 minutes from either location. The claimant's return time would have been approximately 4:30 p.m. on that day when the main office was still open yet the claimant stated he did not encounter anyone else from his work that afternoon. The claimant's time card reflected that he had clocked out at around 6:30 p.m. on that date. The claimant engaged in time theft and was not truthful with his employer. Benefits are denied.

DECISION:

The August 26, 2022, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as he has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times his weekly benefit amount, provided he is otherwise eligible.
