(Administrative Law Judge)

(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct
Section 96.3-7 – Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Tyson Fresh Meats (employer) appealed a representative's January 27, 2004 decision (reference 01) that concluded Teofilo Andrade (claimant) was discharged and there was no evidence of willful or deliberate misconduct. After hearing notices were mailed to the parties' last-known addresses of record, a telephone hearing was held on March 16, 2004. The claimant did not provide a telephone number where he could be reached and, therefore, did not participate. The employer participated by Jim Petzholdt, Personnel Manager.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds that: The claimant was hired on September 4, 2001 as a full-time hourly production worker. The employer's policy against violence is posted in the workplace.

On December 27, 2003, the claimant became involved in a verbal altercation with a co-worker. The claimant elevated the situation to a physical altercation. The claimant grabbed the co-worker three times and shoved him. One time the claimant shoved the co-worker into a female co-worker. The force was so hard that the female co-worker was shoved into the wall and developed bruising. The employer suspended the claimant on December 30, 2003, the next day after the incident the claimant appeared for work. After investigation the employer terminated the claimant on January 2, 2004, for violence in the workplace.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue is whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct. For the following reasons the administrative law judge concludes he was.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
 - a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

- a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). Evidence established that the claimant stated three times that his employer should stay out of his way or he would be sorry. The Court of Appeals found that this threat constituted misconduct. At page 576, the court went on to state, "Furthermore, an employer has the right to expect decency and civility from its employees." The court found substantial evidence of offensive words and body language in the record of the case. Henecke v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 533 N.W.2d 573 (Iowa App. 1995). A threat to make it miserable for the employer is sufficient to establish misconduct. Myers v. Employment Appeal Board, 462 N.W.2d 734 (Iowa App. 1990).

An employer has a right to expect employees to conduct themselves in a certain manner. The claimant disregarded the employer's right by engaging in a physical altercation with a co-worker. The claimant's disregard of the employer's interests is misconduct. As such, he is not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits.

Iowa Code Section 96.3-7 provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5.

The claimant has received benefits in the amount of $2,177.00 since filing his claim herein. Pursuant to this decision, those benefits now constitute an overpayment which must be repaid.

DECISION:

The representative's January 27, 2004 decision (reference 01) is reversed. The claimant is not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because he was discharged from work for misconduct. Benefits are withheld until he has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times his weekly benefit amount, provided he is otherwise eligible. The claimant is overpaid benefits in the amount of $2,177.00.
