APPEAL 23R-UI-05127-LJ

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE
DECISION

CASEYS MARKETING COMPANY

Employer

OC: 01/08/23

Claimant: Appellant (2)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge from Employment
Iowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quit from Employment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On February 18, 2023, claimant filed an appeal from the February 8, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based on a determination that claimant voluntarily quit her employment without good cause attributable to the employer. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. An in-person hearing was held in Cedar Rapids, Iowa at 3:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 1, 2023. Claimant Anabelle Boatman participated. Witness Michael Boatman, claimant's father, also testified. Employer Casey's Marketing Company did not appear for the hearing. No exhibits were admitted into the hearing record.

ISSUE:

Did the claimant quit the employment without good cause attributable to the employer or was she discharged for reasons related to job misconduct sufficient to warrant a denial of unemployment benefits?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant began working for this employer in August 2021 (according to the administrative record). Most recently, she worked full-time hours as a second shift manager. Claimant's employment ended on January 3, 2023, when she was discharged.

On claimant's final day of work, she came in and Zef, her manager, told her, "Don't even bother clocking in." Claimant then followed him to the office, where Zef presented her with a final written warning because claimant had not come in the day before due to extensive car problems. Zef told claimant she did not have to sign the warning, and claimant said she would not sign it because she disagreed with it. Claimant and Zef then began arguing, and during the argument both parties used profanity though neither swore at the other person.

Claimant was frustrated because she had shown devotion to the company and had tried to come to work but her car had broken down on her way into work. She was forced to wait for her insurance company to send a tow truck and then provide her with a rental car, and she had no other immediate means of transportation. Zef got angry during the meeting because claimant would not sign the warning, even though he told her she did not have to sign it. He discharged her for failing to sign the warning and for arguing with him. Claimant had never been warned for her attitude or arguing with anyone. She had no knowledge her job was in jeopardy.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant did not quit but was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed.

Iowa Code §96.5(1) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

1. Voluntary quitting. If the individual has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the individual's employer, if so found by the department.

Iowa unemployment insurance law disqualifies claimants who voluntarily quit employment without good cause attributable to the employer or who are discharged for work-connected misconduct. Iowa Code §§ 96.5(1) and 96.5(2)a. The burden of proof rests with the employer to show that the claimant voluntarily left the employment. Irving v. Empl. App. Bd., 15-0104, 2016 WL 3125854, (Iowa June 3, 2016). A voluntary quitting of employment requires that an employee exercise a voluntary choice between remaining employed or terminating the employment relationship. Wills v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 447 N.W.2d 137, 138 (Iowa 1989); Peck v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 492 N.W.2d 438, 440 (Iowa Ct. App. 1992). It requires an intention to terminate the employment relationship accompanied by an overt act of carrying out that intention. Local Lodge #1426 v. Wilson Trailer, 289 N.W.2d 608, 612 (Iowa 1980). Where there is no expressed intention or act to sever the relationship, the case must be analyzed as a discharge from employment. Peck v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 492 N.W.2d 438 (Iowa Ct. App. 1992).

Here, the employer has not presented any evidence that claimant intended to sever her employment with Casey's or acted in any way to end her employment. She showed up to work on her final day, and she was told she did not have to sign the warning that she chose not to sign. The administrative law judge views this separation as a discharge from employment, and it will be analyzed as such.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

- a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

d. For the purposes of this subsection, “misconduct” means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee’s contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer’s interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer’s interests or of the employee’s duties and obligations to the employer...

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

A determination as to whether an employee’s act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer’s policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant’s statement and the employer’s statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant’s discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

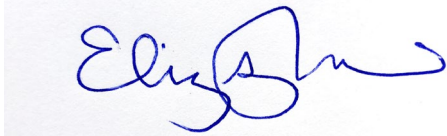

Every employer is entitled to expect civility and decency from its employees, and an employee’s “use of profanity or offensive language in a confrontational, disrespectful, or name-calling context may be recognized as misconduct.” Henecke v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 533 N.W.2d 573, 576 (Iowa App. 1995) (internal citation omitted). However, the use of profanity or offensive language is not automatically disqualifying for unemployment insurance benefits purposes. The “question of whether the use of improper language in the workplace is misconduct is nearly always a fact question... [and] must be considered with other relevant factors...” Myers v. Employment Appeal Board, 462 N.W.2d 734, 738 (Iowa App. 1990). A recent Employment Appeal Board decision set forth six aggravating factors to be considered when examining an employee’s use of improper language: “(1) cursing in front of customers, vendors, or other third parties; (2) undermining a supervisor’s authority; (3) threats of violence; (4) threats of future misbehavior or insubordination; (5) repeated incidents of vulgarity; and (6) discriminatory context.” Emp. App. Bd. Hrg. No. 16B-UI-08787, at *3 (Emp. App. Bd. pub. Oct. 21, 2016) (citing cases). The Employment Appeal Board also suggests that the general work environment is a relevant consideration in analyzing profanity. Id.

The final incident leading to claimant’s end of employment involved claimant and her supervisor getting into an argument. Both parties used profanity, though neither directed their profanity at the other. Both parties were frustrated and upset. While claimant could be considered disrespectful in that she argued with her supervisor, he had treated her disrespectfully the day prior in talking to her rudely on the phone and then hanging up on her and respectful behavior should be reciprocated in the workplace, not simply blindly given by subordinates to supervisors. The claimant did not yell or swear in front of customers, she did not undermine her supervisor's authority, and she did not threaten any violence or insubordination. She refused to sign a warning, but she was told specifically that she did not have to sign it. There is no evidence in the record that claimant engaged in disqualifying misconduct. Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The February 8, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. Claimant did not quit but was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided she is otherwise eligible. Any benefits claimed and withheld on this basis shall be paid.
