(Decision Dated & Mailed)

Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge/Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed a timely appeal from the January 18, 2006, reference 01, decision that allowed benefits. After due notice was issued, a hearing was held by telephone conference call before Administrative Law Judge Julie Elder on February 9, 2006. The claimant participated in the hearing. Bill Rankin, District Manager, participated in the hearing on behalf of the employer.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: The claimant was employed as a full-time center manager for Check Into Cash of Iowa from January 2005 to December 27, 2005. The employer cited six major reasons for terminating the claimant's employment including six nightly deposits refused by the bank due to errors; the claimant's initial refusal to work a flex schedule because of lack of customers; lack of communication, as well as friction, between the claimant and a customer service representative; the claimant's statements that the company took advantage of its customers and abuses poor people; and the claimant's statements in the workplace about Christianity. The last straw for the employer occurred December 21, 2005, when the claimant failed to have a vehicle so she could pick up available funds for three past due checks. The claimant received verbal warnings December 7 and 14, 2005, and a written warning with her termination December 27, 2005.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

Iowa Code section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden of proving disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. lowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (lowa 1982). The propriety of a discharge is not at issue in an unemployment insurance case. An employer may be justified in discharging an employee, but the employee's conduct may not amount to misconduct precluding the payment of unemployment compensation. The law limits disqualifying misconduct to willful wrongdoing or repeated carelessness or negligence that equals willful misconduct in culpability. Newman v. lowa Department of Job Service, 351 N.W.2d 806 (lowa App. 1984). While the claimant's performance did not meet the employer's expectations, the last straw for the employer occurred December 21, 2005, when the claimant did not have a vehicle with which to go recover available funds for three past due checks. The claimant did not have transportation that day because her son had an accident with the car she usually drove. Consequently, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant's actions do not rise to the level of disqualifying misconduct as defined by lowa law. Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The January 18, 2006, reference 01, decision is affirmed. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.
