OC: 11/27/22

Claimant: Respondent (5)

Iowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quitting

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge

Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Overpayment of Benefits

Iowa Code § 235B.6

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer Participation in Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated January 9, 2023, (reference 03) that held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits. A telephone hearing was held on February 14, 2023, pursuant to due notice and was consolidated with the hearing for 23A-UI-00166-PT-T. Claimant participated. Employer participated. Employer's Exhibits A – C were admitted into evidence. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

Did claimant voluntarily quit the employment with good cause attributable to employer?

Has the claimant been overpaid any unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?

Can any charges to the employer's account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for employer on November 29, 2022. Employer placed claimant on an unpaid disciplinary suspension on November 30, 2022, due to an alleged violation of employer's patient care policy. While on suspension, claimant submitted a written resignation effective January 4, 2023.

Claimant was employed as a full-time supportive community living specialist from January 4, 2022, until her employment with employer ended on January 4, 2023. As a supportive community living specialist, claimant cared for residents with disabilities and high needs of care by assisting residents with their daily activities.

Employer has a written child and dependent adult abuse reporting policy, which requires all employees who witness violations of employer's patient care policy to report the violation to a director. The employer may internally investigate any allegations and employees involved in an allegation are either suspended or transferred to another location pending the outcome of the investigation. Claimant was familiar with employer's work rules and policies.

On November 30, 2022, a coworker filed a report alleging claimant violated employer's patient care policy. Later that day, claimant's supervisor called and informed claimant she was suspended without pay and that she was not to come into work. Employer did not question any witnesses nor perform any internal investigation into the allegation. On December 21, 2022, claimant submitted a written two-week's notice of resignation, wherein she informed employer she was resigning effective January 4, 2023, because she could no longer live without pay and she felt she was being retaliated against.

The administrative record reflects that claimant has not received any unemployment insurance benefits since filing her original claim on November 27, 2022. Employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview but did submit a written statement briefly explaining the reason for claimant's suspension.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was suspended from employment for no disqualifying reason and then subsequently voluntarily left employment with good cause attributable to the employer.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(9) provides:

(9) Suspension or disciplinary layoff. Whenever a claim is filed and the reason for the claimant's unemployment is the result of a disciplinary layoff or suspension imposed by the employer, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct must be resolved. Alleged misconduct or dishonesty without corroboration is not sufficient to result in disqualification. This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.5 and Supreme Court of Iowa decision, Sheryl A. Cospers vs. Iowa Department of Job Service and Blue Cross of Iowa.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job-related misconduct. Cospers v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. The lack of a current warning may detract from a finding of an intentional policy violation.

When based on carelessness, the carelessness must actually indicate a "wrongful intent" to be disqualifying in nature. Id. Negligence does not constitute misconduct unless recurrent in nature; a single act is not disqualifying unless indicative of a deliberate disregard of the employer's interests. Henry v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 391 N.W.2d 731 (Iowa Ct. App. 1986). Poor work performance is not misconduct in the absence of evidence of intent. Miller v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 423 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988). Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Co., 453 N.W.2d 230

(Iowa Ct. App. 1990). However, "Balky and argumentative" conduct is not necessarily disqualifying. City of Des Moines v. Picray, (No. 85-919, Iowa Ct. App. Filed June 25, 1986).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all if it is not contrary to public policy, but if it fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation.

Claimant was placed on an unpaid disciplinary suspension due to an allegation that claimant had violated employer's patient care policy. Employer did not question any witnesses, perform an investigation, nor present any evidence at hearing demonstrating that claimant had violated employer's patient care policy. Alleged misconduct or dishonesty without corroboration is not sufficient to result in disqualification. Absent any evidence corroborating employer's allegation, the administrative law judge concludes the employer has not met the burden of proof to establish claimant committed the alleged misconduct. As such, claimant was eligible for benefits while on the unpaid disciplinary suspension.

The record shows that on December 21, 2022, while on the unpaid disciplinary suspension, claimant submitted a written resignation to employer ending her employment effective January 4, 2023. For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant voluntarily left employment with good cause attributable to employer.

Iowa Code section 96.5(1) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

1. Voluntary quitting. If the individual has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the individual's employer, if so found by the department.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.26(1) provides:

Voluntary quit with good cause attributable to the employer and separations not considered to be voluntary quits. The following are reasons for a claimant leaving employment with good cause attributable to the employer:

(1) A change in the contract of hire. An employer's willful breach of contract of hire shall not be a disqualifiable issue. This would include any change that would jeopardize the worker's safety, health or morals. The change of contract of hire must be substantial in nature and could involve changes in working hours, shifts, remuneration, location of employment, drastic modification in type of work, etc. Minor changes in a worker's routine on the job would not constitute a change of contract of hire.

In general, a substantial pay reduction of 25 to 35 percent or a similar reduction of working hours creates good cause attributable to the employer for a resignation. Dehmel v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 433 N.W.2d 700 (Iowa 1988). A notice of an intent to quit had been required by Cobb v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 506 N.W.2d 445, 447-78 (Iowa 1993), Suluki v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 503 N.W.2d 402, 405 (Iowa 1993), and Swanson v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 554 N.W.2d 294, 296 (Iowa Ct. App. 1996). Those cases required an employee to give an employer notice of intent to quit, thus giving the employer an opportunity to cure working conditions. However, in 1995, the Iowa Administrative Code was amended to include an intent-to-quit requirement. The requirement was only added to rule 871-24.26(6)(b), the provision addressing work-related health problems. No intent-to-quit requirement was added to rule 871-24.26(4), the intolerable working conditions provision. Our supreme court concluded that, because the intent-to-quit requirement was added to Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.26(6)(b) but not 871-24.26(4), notice of intent to quit is not required for intolerable working conditions. Hy-Vee, Inc. v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 710 N.W.2d 1 (Iowa 2005). A refusal to accept a night shift position at a sanitarium constitutes a good cause quit attributable to the employer when that shift would endanger the claimant's health. Forrest Park Sanitarium v. Miller, 333 Iowa 1341, 11 N.W.2d 582 (Iowa 1943).

Claimant was not required by law to give her employer notice of her intent to quit and the change to the terms of hire was substantial. Claimant was hired to work full-time as a supportive community living specialist, but after being placed on disciplinary suspension, claimant was prohibited from working any of her scheduled hours and she received no payment for more than four-weeks. Employer has presented no evidence of disqualifying misconduct to support the disciplinary suspension and the elimination of claimant's work hours and pay are a substantial change in the terms of employment. As such, claimant has met the burden of proof to show she quit with good cause attributable to the employer. Benefits are allowed.

The overpayment issue is moot as claimant has not received any unemployment insurance benefits and she is not disqualified from the receipt of benefits.

The issue of employer participation is moot as claimant has not received any benefits and is not disqualified from the receipt of benefits.

DECISION:

The decision of the representative dated January 9, 2023, (reference 03) is modified to reflect that claimant voluntarily left employment with good cause attributable to the employer on January 4, 2023. The modification has no change in effect as claimant is eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, provided claimant meets all other eligibility requirements.
