APPEAL 24A-UI-03206-SN-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

JEWELL MACHINE & FABRICATION
Employer

OC: 03/03/24
Claimant: Respondent (1)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer, Jewell Machine & Fabrication, filed an appeal from the March 20, 2024, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision granted benefits effective January 22, 2024, based upon the determination the claimant was discharged, but misconduct was not shown. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on April 16, 2024, at 1:00 p.m. The claimant participated and testified. The employer participated through Jamie Leuenhagen, human resources generalist. Exhibits 1, 2, and 3 were received into evidence.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

Whether the claimant has been overpaid benefits? Whether the claimant is excused from repayment of benefits due to the employer's non-participation?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds:

The claimant worked full-time as a computer numerical control operator ("CNC") from July 10, 2023, until he was separated from employment on January 19, 2024, when he was terminated.

Prior to working for a temp to hire service term of employment that he worked from April 23, 2023, to July 9, 2023, he had no CNC experience. The job description for the CNC operator position states that a successful applicant needs to be able to adapt to varying machines. The employer provided a copy of the job description. (Exhibit 4) The claimant received limited on-the-job training on these machines. With all final products, employees are trained to remove burrs or in other words excess metal that does not match the pattern.

On December 14, 2023, the claimant neglected to clamp a part with its holding device, the chuck. The machine warned the claimant with an audible alarm and cancelled out programmed offsets. The claimant then properly clamped the part on the machine's chuck, but then he forgot to program the offsets back in, which resulted in the drill bit breaking. Later that day, the claimant was operating a different machine with two different turrets. The claimant only ran a program on one turret which caused that machine to crash.

On December 15, 2023, the claimant received a written warning for the two machine errors occurring on December 14, 2023. The written warning describes this as "substandard work" and "careless." The employer provided a copy of this warning. (Exhibit 1)

On January 4, 2024, the claimant gave a passing score to a part. The part is shown as having ridges of jagged aluminum around the diameter of the hole in the center of the part. This part is significantly magnified in the picture. It is only an inch and a half in diameter. The claimant did not see these ridges upon inspection before he gave it a passing score.

On January 5, 2024, the claimant received a final warning. The final warning described the piece that the claimant passed on January 4, 2024, as "sub-standard work" and the product of carelessness. It warned that further quality issues would result in further disciplinary action up to and including termination. The employer provided the final warning. (Exhibit 2)

On January 16, 2024, the claimant gave a passing score to a part. The part as shown on a diagram provided by the employer looks like a metal nut. (Exhibit 3) In the bottom of the part is a small burr that should have been removed by the claimant upon inspection. When the claimant was trained to produce this part, he was told he could rely on a go-gauge, an instrument that is used in the hole of the part to determine if burrs exist. The claimant used the go-gauge in this instance and did not discover it.

On January 22, 2024, the claimant was terminated for the incidents listed above in the findings of fact. The termination notice describes the final incident on January 16, 2024, as "careless." The employer reasoned that the claimant's work quality was not tolerable for him to be retained. The employer provided the termination notice. (Exhibit 3)

The claimant worked to the best of his ability.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The administrative law judge concludes the employer has not met its burden to show the claimant was terminated on January 22, 2024, due to misconduct. Benefits are granted, provided he is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)b, c and d provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

b. Provided further, if gross misconduct is established, the department shall cancel the individual's wage credits earned, prior to the date of discharge, from all employers.

c. Gross misconduct is deemed to have occurred after a claimant loses employment as a result of an act constituting an indictable offense in connection with the claimant's employment, provided the claimant is duly convicted thereof or has signed a statement admitting the commission of such an act. Determinations regarding a benefit claim may be redetermined within five years from the effective date of the claim. Any benefits paid to a claimant prior to a determination that the claimant has lost employment as a result of such act shall not be considered to have been accepted by the claimant in good faith.

d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

- (1) Material falsification of the individual's employment application.
- (2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.
- (3) Intentional damage of an employer's property.
- (4) Consumption of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in a manner not directed by the manufacturer, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies.
- (5) Reporting to work under the influence of alcohol, illegal or nonprescribed prescription drugs, or an impairing substance in an off-label manner, or a combination of such substances, on the employer's premises in violation of the employer's employment policies, unless the individual is compelled to work by the employer outside of scheduled or on-call working hours.
- (6) Conduct that substantially and unjustifiably endangers the personal safety of coworkers or the general public.
- (7) Incarceration for an act for which one could reasonably expect to be incarcerated that result in missing work.
- (8) Incarceration as a result of a misdemeanor or felony conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction.
- (9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.
- (10) Falsification of any work-related report, task, or job that could expose the employer or coworkers to legal liability or sanction for violation of health or safety laws.
- (11) Failure to maintain any licenses, registration, or certification that is reasonably required by the employer or by law, or that is a functional requirement to perform the individual's regular job duties, unless the failure is not within the control of the individual.
- (12) Conduct that is libelous or slanderous toward an employer or an employee of the employer if such conduct is not protected under state or federal law.
- (13) Theft of an employer or coworker's funds or property.
- (14) Intentional misrepresentation of time worked or work carried out that results in the individual receiving unearned wages or unearned benefits.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The Iowa Court of Appeals found substantial evidence of misconduct in testimony that the claimant worked slower than he was capable of working and would temporarily and briefly improve following oral reprimands. Sellers v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 531 N.W.2d 645 (Iowa Ct. App. 1995). Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Co., 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990). Misconduct must be "substantial" to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). Poor work performance is not misconduct in the absence of evidence of intent. Miller v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 423 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988).

The conduct for which claimant was discharged was merely an isolated incident of poor judgment. To the extent that the circumstances surrounding each incident were not similar enough to establish a pattern of misbehavior, the employer has only shown that claimant was negligent. "[M]ere negligence is not enough to constitute misconduct." Lee v. Employment Appeal Board, 616 N.W.2d 661, 666 (Iowa 2000).

A claimant will not be disqualified if the employer shows only "inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances." 871 IAC 24.32(1)(a). When looking at an alleged pattern of negligence, previous incidents are considered when deciding whether a "degree of recurrence" indicates culpability.

The claimant was careless, but the carelessness does not indicate "such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design" such that it could accurately be called misconduct. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(1)(a); Greenwell v. Emp't Appeal Bd., No. 15-0154 (Iowa Ct. App. Mar. 23, 2016). That is especially true here because the claimant was not a formally trained CNC operator and the training provided to him was on the job and on varying machine types. Ordinary negligence is all that is proven here. Because the employer has failed to establish disqualifying misconduct, benefits are allowed, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.

DECISION:

The March 20, 2024, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is AFFIRMED. The claimant was terminated for infrequent incidents of mere negligence on January 22, 2024. As a result, the claimant is eligible for benefits, assuming he is otherwise eligible for benefits.
