Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.10 – Employer/Representative Participation Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed an appeal from the April 4, 2022, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that allowed benefits based upon the determination that claimant was discharged from employment, but not for disqualifying misconduct. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on May 24, 2022. The claimant, Alicia M. Fischer, participated personally. The employer, Starbucks Coffee Co., participated through testifying witnesses Hearing Representative Toni McColl and District Manager Sarah Salazar. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?
Has the claimant been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?
Can charges to the employer's account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant was employed full time as a store manager from June 2015, until this employment ended on March 18, 2022, when she was discharged.

Since early in the COVID-19 pandemic, the employer had maintained a policy that required team members to answer questions regarding any symptoms they may be experiencing on the iPad. After they did this, the employee had to initial a log indicating they had performed the health checks for the day.

In the final three weeks of her employment, claimant was struggling and feeling overwhelmed with her duties in the store. It came to the attention of claimant's supervisor, Salazar, that claimant had failed to initial some of the days in which she worked and should have performed the temperature and health checks prior to the start of the shift. When Salazar reviewed the log, she discovered that, over three weeks, claimant failed to initial the log nine times. Claimant told Salazar when confronted about the issue that she believed she had performed the required health checks but had simply forgotten to initial the log. Salazar had no method by which to verify whether the health checks had been performed according to the policy. By the time it was brought to claimant's attention, the matter was already being reviewed by leadership to consider whether claimant would be discharged.

On March 18, 2022, Salazar informed claimant that she was being discharged for failure to properly make entries into the log regarding the health checks. This was the standard practice for violation of this policy. Claimant had not received prior warnings regarding similar conduct.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition of misconduct has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Reigelsberger v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 500 N.W.2d 64, 66 (Iowa 1993); accord Lee v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 616 N.W.2d 661, 665 (Iowa 2000). The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

In an at-will employment environment an employer may discharge an employee for any number of reasons or no reason at all, provided the discharge is not contrary to public policy. However, if the employer fails to meet its burden of proof to establish job related misconduct as the reason for the separation, it incurs potential liability for unemployment insurance benefits related to that separation.

The conduct for which claimant was discharged was merely the result of oversight on the part of claimant. Inasmuch as the employer had not previously warned claimant about the issue leading to the separation, it has not met the burden of proof to establish that claimant acted deliberately or with recurrent negligence in violation of company policy, procedure, or prior warning. An employee is entitled to fair warning that the employer will no longer tolerate certain performance and conduct. Without fair warning, an employee has no reasonable way of knowing that there are changes that need be made in order to preserve the employment. If an employer expects an employee to conform to certain expectations or face discharge, appropriate (preferably written), detailed, and reasonable notice should be given. The employer has not demonstrated that claimant engaged in disqualifying misconduct, and no disqualification is imposed.

Because the separation is not disqualifying, the issues of overpayment, repayment, and participation are moot.

DECISION:

The April 4, 2022, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is affirmed. Claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided she is otherwise eligible. The issues of overpayment, repayment, and participation are moot.
