Section 96.5-2-a – Discharge for Misconduct

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

Kimberly Comer (claimant) appealed a representative's January 24, 2006 decision (reference 01) that concluded she was not eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because she was discharged from work with Iowa Home Care (employer) for dishonesty in connection with her work. After hearing notices were mailed to the parties' last-known addresses of record, a telephone hearing was held on February 21, 2006. The claimant participated personally. The employer participated by Kim Weber, Administrator. Candace Atwell observed the hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds that: The claimant was hired on October 17, 2005, as a full-time social worker. The claimant received no warnings during her employment. On December 15, 2005, the employer was confused about the claimant's whereabouts from 3:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., but did not ask the claimant for information. On December 27, 2005, a consumer told the employer that the claimant took the consumer's pain medication from her residence. Without questioning the claimant about the incident, the employer terminated the claimant on December 30, 2005.

The claimant did not take pain medication from the consumer's residence. Many people had access to the consumer's residence, including the consumer's family. On December 15, 2005, the claimant attended the employer's meeting and then went to the Department of Humans Services to carry out her job duties.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The issue is whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct. For the following reasons, the administrative law judge concludes she was not.

Iowa Code Section 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

(1) Definition.

a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

This definition has been accepted by the Iowa Supreme Court as accurately reflecting the intent of the legislature. Huntoon v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 275 N.W.2d 445, 448 (Iowa 1979).

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Department of Job Service, 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982). The employer discharged the claimant and has the burden of proof to show misconduct. The employer did not provide any evidence of misconduct at the hearing. Consequently the employer did not meet its burden of proof to show misconduct. Benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The representative's January 24, 2006 decision (reference 01) is reversed. The claimant was discharged. Misconduct has not been established. Benefits are allowed provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.
