ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

OC: 05/14/23
Claimant: Appellant (2R)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.5(1) – Voluntary Quit

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

On June 15, 2023, the claimant filed an appeal from the June 12, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that denied benefits based upon the determination that claimant voluntarily quit employment without a showing of good cause. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on July 7, 2023. The claimant, Yomiko T. Jennop, participated personally. The employer, Tyson Fresh Meats Inc., did not participate.

ISSUE:

Did the claimant voluntarily quit employment without good cause attributable to the employer, or was the claimant discharged for disqualifying job-related misconduct?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: Claimant was employed full time on the second shift as a production employee from August 9, 2021, until this employment ended on April 9, 2023, when she was discharged.

Prior to her children becoming sick, claimant had accrued eight attendance points. She received a disciplinary warning for accruing eight attendance points. She did not remember when she received the warning. The employer's attendance policy allows employees to accrue up to 10 attendance points before they are discharged.

In the weeks before claimant was discharged, her children became ill. Claimant has five children ranging in age from 13 to 5. Because the children were ill, they could not attend school or day care. Accordingly, claimant had to watch them. She sent doctor's notes to the employer regarding her children's diagnoses. Additionally, every time she missed a shift due to her children's illnesses, she called the employer's attendance line prior to the start of her shift. Claimant's husband lives in the home, as well, but works first shift for the same employer.

The final absence occurred on April 9, 2023. On that date, claimant could not attend work because her children were ill and could not attend school or day care. She called the attendance line prior to the start of her shift. When claimant next tried to go to work, her code to enter the building would not work. She called HR, who told her that she had been discharged because she accrued 20 attendance points.

A determination regarding whether claimant is able to and available for work has not been made. That issue will be remanded for determination.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason.

As a preliminary matter, the administrative law judge concludes claimant was discharged from employment. The un rebutted testimony is that claimant attempted to return to work and was informed of a separation initiated by the employer. The claimant did not quit; she was discharged from employment.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)(a) and (d)(9) provide:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:

a. The disqualification shall continue until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

d. For the purposes of this subsection, "misconduct" means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee's contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or even design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

(9) Excessive unexcused tardiness or absenteeism.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.32(7) provides:

(7) Excessive unexcused absenteeism. Excessive unexcused absenteeism is an intentional disregard of the duty owed by the claimant to the employer and shall be considered misconduct except for illness or other reasonable grounds for which the employee was absent and that were properly reported to the employer.

The employer has the burden to prove the claimant was discharged for work-connected misconduct as defined by the unemployment insurance law. Cosper, 321 N.W.2d 6. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988).

The employer must prove two elements to establish misconduct based on absenteeism. First, the absences must be excessive. Sallis v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 437 N.W.2d 895 (Iowa 1989). The determination of whether unexcused absenteeism is excessive necessarily requires consideration of past acts and warnings. Higgins v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 350 N.W.2d 187, 192 (Iowa 1984). Second, the absences must be unexcused. Cosper, 321 N.W.2d at 10. The requirement of "unexcused" can be satisfied in two ways. An absence can be unexcused either because it was not for "reasonable grounds," or because it was not "properly reported," holding excused absences are those "with appropriate notice." Higgins, 350 N.W.2d at 191; Cosper, 321 N.W.2d at 10.

Absences due to properly reported illness cannot constitute work-connected misconduct since they are not volitional, even if the employer was fully within its rights to assess points or impose discipline up to or including discharge for the absence under its attendance policy. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871—24.32(7); Cosper, 321 N.W.2d at 9; Gaborit v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 734 N.W.2d 554 (Iowa Ct. App. 2007). Medical documentation is not essential to a determination that an absence due to illness should be treated as excused. See Gaborit, 734 N.W.2d at 555–58. An employer's no-fault absenteeism policy or point system is not dispositive of the issue of qualification for unemployment insurance benefits. Absences related to issues of personal responsibility such as transportation, lack of childcare, and oversleeping are not considered excused. Higgins, 350 N.W.2d at 191. When a claimant does not provide an excuse for an absence, the absence is deemed unexcused. Id.; see also Spragg v. Becker-Underwood, Inc., 672 N.W.2d 333, 2003 WL 22339237 (Iowa App. 2003).

While inability to obtain childcare is typically deemed an unexcused reason for absences, in this case, claimant's inability to obtain childcare was due to exceptional circumstances. Claimant's children, all of whom are young, all became sick and remained sick for an extended period of time, such that they could not attend school or other childcare. Either claimant or her husband, who also works, had to stay with the children while they were ill. This constitutes a reasonable ground for absences. Furthermore, claimant's absences were properly reported to the employer. The employer has not demonstrated that claimant's absences were both excessive and unexcused, as is its burden. Accordingly, benefits are allowed.

DECISION:

The June 12, 2023, (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is REVERSED. The claimant was discharged from employment for no disqualifying reason. Benefits are allowed, provided the claimant is otherwise eligible.

REMAND:

For the reasons outlined in the findings of fact above, the issue of whether claimant is able to and available for work is remanded to the Benefits Bureau of Iowa Workforce Development for an initial investigation and determination.
