APPEAL NO. 11A-UI-11904-H2T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

WELLS FARGO BANK NA

Employer

OC: 08-07-11

Claimant: Respondent (2R)

Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge/Misconduct Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed a timely appeal from the September 2, 2011, reference 01, decision that allowed benefits. After due notice was issued, a hearing was held on October 4, 2011. The claimant did not participate. The employer did participate through Chris Menke, Service Manager and was represented by Kelley Landolphi of Barnett Associates. Employer's Exhibit One was entered and received into the record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged due to job-related misconduct?

Has the claimant been overpaid any unemployment insurance benefits?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds: The claimant was employed as a personal banker full time beginning July 27, 2009 through August 9, 2011 when she was discharged. The claimant set up two bank accounts for individuals she knew to be drug dealers. She helped those individuals structure cash deposits into two separate bank accounts so that the individuals could avoid scrutiny for large cash deposits. One cash deposit was for $7,800.00 and the other was for $8,000.00. Had both been deposited into the same account it would have triggered an unusual activity report to the federal government and to internal bank security. In a written statement given to the employer at the time of their investigation the claimant admitted that she should have filled out a suspicious activity report (SAR) to put the bank on notice.

On July 7 a federal Drug Enforcement Agent (DEA) visited the bank to discuss the accounts with the claimant. After the DEA agent left the bank, the claimant immediately called the depositor and warned him that the drug enforcement agents were investigating him. The claimant had prior training on compliance with the Bank Security Act and knew that it was her responsibility to comply with that act and with internal bank security measures. She did neither.

The employer conducted their investigation of the claimant's actions on August 8 and when they learned of her participation she was discharged the following day.

The claimant has received unemployment benefits after the separation on a claim with an effective date of August 7, 2011.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct.

Iowa Code § 96.5-2-a provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits:

- 2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual's employment:
- a. The individual shall be disqualified for benefits until the individual has worked in and has been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times the individual's weekly benefit amount, provided the individual is otherwise eligible.

871 IAC 24.32(1)a provides:

Discharge for misconduct.

- (1) Definition.
- a. "Misconduct" is defined as a deliberate act or omission by a worker which constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of such worker's contract of employment. Misconduct as the term is used in the disqualification provision as being limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer's interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. On the other hand mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not to be deemed misconduct within the meaning of the statute.

Generally, continued refusal to follow reasonable instructions constitutes misconduct. Gilliam v. Atlantic Bottling Company, 453 N.W.2d 230 (Iowa App. 1990). The claimant knew she was to follow internal security policies as well as comply with federal regulations to prevent money laundering and to help prevent drug dealers from plying their trade. She intentionally violated both the federal regulations and the employer's security rules. Additionally, she warned a known drug dealer that a DEA agent was investigating his banking transactions. Her actions are substantial willful misconduct sufficient to disqualify her from receipt of unemployment insurance benefits. Benefits are denied.

Iowa Code § 96.3-7, as amended in 2008, provides:

- 7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.
- a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.
- b. (1) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment. The employer shall not be charged with the benefits.
- (2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Because the claimant's separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which the claimant was not entitled. The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant's employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The employer will not be charged for benefits whether or not the overpayment is recovered. Iowa Code § 96.3(7). In this case, the claimant has received benefits but was not eligible for those benefits.

DECISION:

The September 2, 2011 (reference 01) decision is reversed. The claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as she has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times her weekly benefit amount, provided she is otherwise eligible.

REMAND:	The matter of	determining the	amount of	the potential	overpayment an	d whether the overpayme	nt should be re	ecovered under	lowa Code §	96.3(7)b is	remanded to the	Agency.
