Iowa Code § 96.5(2)a – Discharge for Misconduct
Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Overpayment of Benefits
Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Employer Participation in Fact-finding Interview

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer filed an appeal from a decision of a representative dated September 21, 2023, (reference 02) that held claimant eligible for unemployment insurance benefits after a separation from employment. After due notice, a hearing was held on October 16, 2023. Claimant did not participate. The employer participated through Human Resources Partner Daniel Horton. The administrative law judge took official notice of the administrative record.

ISSUES:

Was the claimant discharged for disqualifying, job-related misconduct?
Has the claimant been overpaid any unemployment insurance benefits, and if so, can the repayment of those benefits to the agency be waived?
Can any charges to the employer's account be waived?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

The administrative law judge, having heard the testimony and considered all of the evidence in the record, finds: Claimant last worked for the employer on July 16, 2023. The employer discharged claimant on July 19, 2023, due to violations of the employer's code of conduct and workplace safety policies.

Claimant was employed as a full-time maintenance-generalist from September 19, 2022, until his employment with Tyson Fresh Meats Inc. ended on July 19, 2023. As a maintenance-generalist, claimant was responsible for disassembling machines for cleaning, reassembling the machines, and repairing the machines as needed.

The employer has a written employee manual that includes a code of conduct policy that requires employees to treat others with respect and prohibits employees from threatening or harassing other employees. The employer also has a safety policy that prohibits employees from having knives at work, unless the knife was issued by the employer and is used for a specific job duty. The policies inform employees that violations of the policies can result in discipline up to and including termination of employment. Claimant received a copy of the employee manual and was familiar with the employer's work rules and policies.

On July 16, 2023, two employees reported to the human resources department that claimant had made rude and disrespectful comments to a coworker and then later brandished a knife and made comments that made the employees uncomfortable. An HR representative suspended claimant pending the outcome of an investigation.

On July 17 or 18, 2023, the employer called claimant back to work for a meeting to question claimant about the allegations. During the meeting, claimant admitted to having called one of his coworkers a “princess” and a “worthless piece of shit.” Claimant also admitted that he carried a six-inch fixed blade knife on his person while at work. Claimant said that on July 16, while he was talking to his coworkers, claimant had pulled out the knife, asked his coworkers whether they had ever “stuck anyone,” and then sliced a piece of paper to demonstrate the knife’s sharpness. On July 19, 2023, the employer informed claimant that his employment was being terminated effective immediately due to making disrespectful and threatening comments to other employees in violation of the employer’s code of conduct and safety policies.

The claimant’s administrative records indicate that claimant filed his original claim for benefits with an effective date of August 27, 2023, and weekly continued claims for benefits for six weeks between August 27 and October 7, 2023. Claimant has received total unemployment insurance benefits of $3,624.00. The employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes the claimant was discharged from employment due to job-related misconduct. Benefits are denied.

Iowa Code section 96.5(2)d(2) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual’s wage credits:

2. Discharge for misconduct. If the department finds that the individual has been discharged for misconduct in connection with the individual’s employment:

d. For the purposes of this subsection, “misconduct” means a deliberate act or omission by an employee that constitutes a material breach of the duties and obligations arising out of the employee’s contract of employment. Misconduct is limited to conduct evincing such willful or wanton disregard of an employer’s interest as is found in deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which the employer has the right to expect of employees, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree of recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer’s interests or of the employee’s duties and obligations to the employer. Misconduct by an individual includes but is not limited to all of the following:

(2) Knowing violation of a reasonable and uniformly enforced rule of an employer.

The employer has the burden of proof in establishing disqualifying job misconduct. Cosper v. Iowa Dep’t of Job Serv., 321 N.W.2d 6 (Iowa 1982).

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(4) provides:

(4) Report required. The claimant's statement and employer's statement must give detailed facts as to the specific reason for the claimant's discharge. Allegations of misconduct or dishonesty without additional evidence shall not be sufficient to result in disqualification. If the employer is unwilling to furnish available evidence to corroborate the allegation, misconduct cannot be established. In cases where a suspension or disciplinary layoff exists, the claimant is considered as discharged, and the issue of misconduct shall be resolved.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.32(8) provides:

(8) Past acts of misconduct. While past acts and warnings can be used to determine the magnitude of a current act of misconduct, a discharge for misconduct cannot be based on such past act or acts. The termination of employment must be based on a current act.

A determination as to whether an employee's act is misconduct does not rest solely on the interpretation or application of the employer's policy or rule. A violation is not necessarily disqualifying misconduct even if the employer was fully within its rights to impose discipline up to or including discharge for the incident under its policy. The issue is not whether the employer made a correct decision in separating claimant, but whether the claimant is entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. Infante v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 364 N.W.2d 262 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). What constitutes misconduct justifying termination of an employee and what misconduct warrants denial of unemployment insurance benefits are two separate decisions. Pierce v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 425 N.W.2d 679 (Iowa Ct. App. 1988).

Misconduct serious enough to warrant discharge is not necessarily serious enough to warrant a denial of job insurance benefits. Such misconduct must be "substantial." Newman v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 351 N.W.2d 806 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984). The focus is on deliberate, intentional, or culpable acts by the employee. The gravity of the incident, number of policy violations and prior warnings are factors considered when analyzing misconduct. Disqualification for a single misconduct incident must be a deliberate violation or disregard of standards of behavior which employer has a right to expect. Diggs v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 478 N.W.2d 432 (Iowa Ct. App. 1991).

"The use of profanity or offensive language in a confrontational, disrespectful, or name-calling context, may be recognized as misconduct, even in the case of isolated incidents or situations in which the target of abusive name-calling is not present when the vulgar statements are initially made. The question of whether the use of improper language in the workplace is misconduct is nearly always a fact question. It must be considered with other relevant factors, including the context in which it is said, and the general work environment." Myers v. Emp't Appeal Bd., 462 N.W.2d 734 (Iowa Ct. App. 1990). Vulgar language in front of customers can constitute misconduct, Zeches v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 333 N.W.2d 735, 736 (Iowa Ct. App. 1983), as well as vulgarities accompanied with a refusal to obey supervisors. Warrell v. Iowa Dep't of Job Serv., 356 N.W.2d 587, 589 (Iowa Ct. App. 1984).

The employer has presented substantial and credible evidence that the claimant made multiple inappropriate and disrespectful remarks to a coworker. The employer has also presented credible evidence that the claimant carried an unapproved fix-blade knife while at work and made vaguely threatening remarks to coworkers while brandishing the knife. While claimant had not been disciplined for prior similar conduct, claimant was familiar with the employer's work rules and knew this conduct could result in discipline up to and including termination of employment. The employer is entitled to establish reasonable work rules and expect employees to abide by them. Claimant deliberately and intentionally violated the employer's policies and this conduct is disqualifying misconduct. Benefits are denied.

The next issues to be determined are whether claimant has been overpaid benefits, whether the claimant must repay those benefits, and whether the employer's account will be charged. For the reasons that follow, the administrative law judge concludes:

Iowa Code section 96.3(7)a, b, as amended in 2008, provides:

Payment – determination – duration – child support intercept.

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if unrebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the quit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871-subrule 24.32(7). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) "A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits," pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer's representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) "Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual," as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)"b" as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for those benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant's employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The employer will not be charged for benefits if it is determined that they did participate in the fact-finding interview. Iowa Code § 96.3(7).

Because claimant's separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which claimant was not entitled. The administrative law judge concludes that claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $3,624.00 for the six-weeks ending October 7, 2023. There is no evidence that claimant received these benefits due to fraud or willful misrepresentation. Because the employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview, claimant is not required to repay to the agency the benefits he received and the employer's account shall be charged.

DECISION:

The September 21, 2023, (reference 02) unemployment insurance decision is reversed. The claimant was discharged from employment due to disqualifying, job-related misconduct. Unemployment insurance benefits are withheld until claimant has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times claimant's weekly benefit amount, provided claimant is otherwise eligible.

The claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $3,624.00 and is not obligated to repay the agency those benefits. The employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview and its account shall be charged.
