AUDENCIO R HERNANDEZ Claimant

APPEAL 23A-UI-09868-SN-T

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE DECISION

TYSON FRESH MEATS INC Employer

> OC: 09/17/23 Claimant: Respondent (2-R)

Iowa Code § 96.5(1)d – Voluntary Leaving (Illness/Injury) Iowa Code § 96.4-3 – Able and Available Iowa Code § 96.3(7) – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 – Recovery of Benefit Overpayment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE:

The employer, Tyson Fresh Meats Inc, filed an appeal from the October 4, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision that granted benefits upon the conclusion the claimant voluntarily quit with good cause attributable to the employer due to a work-related disability. The parties were properly notified of the hearing. A telephone hearing was held on November 2, 2023. The claimant participated. The employer participated through Senior Human Resources Partner Emma Campuzano. Exhibit 1 was received as evidence.

ISSUES:

Did the claimant quit without good cause attributable to the employer?

Whether the claimant was overpaid benefits? Whether he is excused from repaying those benefits because the employer did not adequately participate at the factfinding stage?

FINDINGS OF FACT:

Having reviewed all of the evidence in the record, the administrative law judge finds:

The claimant worked for the employer as a full-time membrane skinner from November 5, 2002, until he separated from employment on September 12, 2023, when he quit.

On July 27, 2021, the claimant was working for the employer when he injured his neck. As a result, the claimant was given restrictions by his medical provider, but he was able to work within those restrictions.

On September 12, 2023, the claimant provided his resignation notice. The claimant also signed a settlement agreement to relieve the employer from all claims related to his employment. In return, the claimant received $75,000.

The following section of the findings of fact display the findings necessary to resolve the overpayment issue:

The claimant has received $2,910.00 in unemployment insurance benefits after this separation.

On September 27, 2023, Iowa Workforce Development sent a notice of factfinding to the parties informing them of a fact-finding interview on October 3, 2023. The representative was not able to contact the employer's registered representative. The representative used the information the employer provided in its protest. It merely said the claimant signed a global release and quit on September 12, 2023.

REASONING AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW:

The administrative law judge concludes the claimant voluntarily left the employment without good cause attributable to the employer. The claimant has been overpaid $2,910.00 in unemployment insurance benefits. The employer did not participate at the factfinding stage due to its own fault, so it may be responsible for repaying the balance paid to the claimant.

Iowa Code section 96.5(1) provides:

An individual shall be disqualified for benefits, regardless of the source of the individual's wage credits:

1. Voluntary quitting. If the individual has left work voluntarily without good cause attributable to the individual's employer, if so found by the department.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.26(6)b provides:

Voluntary quit with good cause attributable to the employer and separations not considered to be voluntary quits. The following are reasons for a claimant leaving employment with good cause attributable to the employer:

(6) Separation because of illness, injury, or pregnancy.

b. Employment related separation. The claimant was compelled to leave employment because of an illness, injury, or allergy condition that was attributable to the employment. Factors and circumstances directly connected with the employment which caused or aggravated the illness, injury, allergy, or disease to the employee which made it impossible for the employee to continue in employment because of serious danger to the employee's health may be held to be an involuntary termination of employment and constitute good cause attributable to the employer. The claimant will be eligible for benefits if compelled to leave employment as a result of an injury suffered on the job.

In order to be eligible under this paragraph "b" an individual must present competent evidence showing adequate health reasons to justify termination; before quitting have informed the employer of the work-related health problem and inform the employer that the individual intends to quit unless the problem is corrected or the individual is reasonably accommodated. Reasonable accommodation includes other comparable work which is not injurious to the claimant's health and for which the claimant must remain available. An individual who voluntarily leaves their employment due to an alleged work-related illness or injury must first give notice to the employer of the anticipated reasons for quitting to give the employer an opportunity to remedy the situation or offer an accommodation. Suluki v. Employment Appeal Board, 503 N.W.2d 402 (Iowa 1993). An employee who receives a reasonable expectation of assistance from the employer after complaining about working conditions must complain further if conditions persist to preserve eligibility for benefits. Polley v. Gopher Bearing Company, 478 N.W.2d 775 (Minn. App. 1991).

The administrative law judge rejects the employer's argument that a settlement agreement signed by the claimant decides this case. Employees cannot bargain away their unemployment compensation rights. Iowa Code 96.15 unambiguously states that any settlement that waives rights to unemployment is void.

Nevertheless, the claimant quit in this case and the burden is on him to show that his quitting was necessary because to continue working would cause "serious danger" to his health. The claimant has made no such showing on this record. The claimant worked in his position since July 27, 2021. He did have restrictions, but he was able to work in his current role within those restrictions. The claimant explained that he signed the settlement agreement and resigned to get the money. This is not testimony suggesting "serious danger" to his health if he continued working for the employer. Benefits are denied.

The next issue is whether claimant has been overpaid benefits. Iowa Code § 96.3(7)a-b, as amended in 2008, provides:

7. Recovery of overpayment of benefits.

a. If an individual receives benefits for which the individual is subsequently determined to be ineligible, even though the individual acts in good faith and is not otherwise at fault, the benefits shall be recovered. The department in its discretion may recover the overpayment of benefits either by having a sum equal to the overpayment deducted from any future benefits payable to the individual or by having the individual pay to the department a sum equal to the overpayment.

b. (1) (a) If the department determines that an overpayment has been made, the charge for the overpayment against the employer's account shall be removed and the account shall be credited with an amount equal to the overpayment from the unemployment compensation trust fund and this credit shall include both contributory and reimbursable employers, notwithstanding section 96.8, subsection 5. The employer shall not be relieved of charges if benefits are paid because the employer or an agent of the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. This prohibition against relief of charges shall apply to both contributory and reimbursable employers.

(b) However, provided the benefits were not received as the result of fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual, benefits shall not be recovered from an individual if the employer did not participate in the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to section 96.6, subsection 2, and an overpayment occurred because of a subsequent reversal on appeal regarding the issue of the individual's separation from employment.

(2) An accounting firm, agent, unemployment insurance accounting firm, or other entity that represents an employer in unemployment claim matters and demonstrates a continuous pattern of failing to participate in the initial determinations to award benefits, as determined and defined by rule by the department, shall be denied permission by the department to represent any employers in unemployment insurance matters. This subparagraph does not apply to attorneys or counselors admitted to practice in the courts of this state pursuant to section 602.10101.

Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 provides:

Employer and employer representative participation in fact-finding interviews.

(1) "Participate," as the term is used for employers in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to lowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means submitting detailed factual information of the quantity and quality that if unrebutted would be sufficient to result in a decision favorable to the employer. The most effective means to participate is to provide live testimony at the interview from a witness with firsthand knowledge of the events leading to the separation. If no live testimony is provided, the employer must provide the name and telephone number of an employee with firsthand information who may be contacted, if necessary, for rebuttal. A party may also participate by providing detailed written statements or documents that provide detailed factual information of the events leading to separation. At a minimum, the information provided by the employer or the employer's representative must identify the dates and particular circumstances of the incident or incidents, including, in the case of discharge, the act or omissions of the claimant or, in the event of a voluntary separation, the stated reason for the guit. The specific rule or policy must be submitted if the claimant was discharged for violating such rule or policy. In the case of discharge for attendance violations, the information must include the circumstances of all incidents the employer or the employer's representative contends meet the definition of unexcused absences as set forth in 871-subrule 24.32(7). On the other hand, written or oral statements or general conclusions without supporting detailed factual information and information submitted after the fact-finding decision has been issued are not considered participation within the meaning of the statute.

(2) "A continuous pattern of nonparticipation in the initial determination to award benefits," pursuant to Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, as the term is used for an entity representing employers, means on 25 or more occasions in a calendar quarter beginning with the first calendar quarter of 2009, the entity files appeals after failing to participate. Appeals filed but withdrawn before the day of the contested case hearing will not be considered in determining if a continuous pattern of nonparticipation exists. The division administrator shall notify the employer's representative in writing after each such appeal.

(3) If the division administrator finds that an entity representing employers as defined in Iowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, has engaged in a continuous pattern of nonparticipation, the division administrator shall suspend said representative for a period of up to six months on the first occasion, up to one year on the second occasion and up to ten years on the third or subsequent occasion. Suspension by the division administrator constitutes final agency action and may be appealed pursuant to Iowa Code section 17A.19.

(4) "Fraud or willful misrepresentation by the individual," as the term is used for claimants in the context of the initial determination to award benefits pursuant to lowa Code section 96.6, subsection 2, means providing knowingly false statements or knowingly false denials of material facts for the purpose of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits. Statements or denials may be either oral or written by the claimant. Inadvertent misstatements or mistakes made in good faith are not considered fraud or willful misrepresentation.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 96.3(7)"b" as amended by 2008 Iowa Acts, Senate File 2160.

The claimant has received $2,910.00 in unemployment insurance benefits after this separation.

Because the claimant's separation was disqualifying, benefits were paid to which he was not entitled. The unemployment insurance law provides that benefits must be recovered from a claimant who receives benefits and is later determined to be ineligible for benefits, even though the claimant acted in good faith and was not otherwise at fault. However, the overpayment will not be recovered when it is based on a reversal on appeal of an initial determination to award benefits on an issue regarding the claimant's employment separation if: (1) the benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by the claimant and (2) the employer did not participate in the initial proceeding to award benefits. The benefits were not received due to any fraud or willful misrepresentation by claimant.

Additionally, the employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview. Thus, claimant is not obligated to repay to the agency the benefits he received.

The law also states that an employer may be charged if "the employer failed to respond timely or adequately to the department's request for information relating to the payment of benefits. . ." lowa Code § 96.3(7)(b)(1)(a). The record does not indicate circumstances which would excuse the employer from participating at the factfinding stage such as delay or non-receipt of the factfinding notice. The employer elected to use its protest as written participation. It merely said the claimant quit and had signed a global release. No information was given whatsoever regarding the circumstances of his quitting. Iowa Admin. Code r. 871-24.10 states that, at a minimum, the circumstances surrounding the resignation should be given. The employer's participation was inadequate in this case. It may have to absorb the payments made to the claimant.

DECISION:

The October 4, 2023 (reference 01) unemployment insurance decision is REVERSED. The claimant was discharged from employment for disqualifying misconduct. Benefits are withheld until such time as he has worked in and been paid wages for insured work equal to ten times his weekly benefit amount, provided he is otherwise eligible.

The claimant has been overpaid unemployment insurance benefits in the amount of $2,910.00 but is not obligated to repay the agency those benefits. The employer did not participate in the fact-finding interview due its own fault and its account may be charged.
